

AMENDMENTS ARE STATE'S INTEREST

posed a "luxury" tax—a modified sales tax on certain articles which the 1938 legislature revamped into a straight sales tax.

Officially named the "public welfare revenue tax" the levy is doomed but the method for its passage from the statute books is at stake Tuesday.

"Everyone knows I oppose the sales tax," Jones says. "But if the constitutional amendment is adopted there will be a short period of hardship because no provision has been made to take care of relief cases."

"If the legislature is allowed to effect repeal, its death will coincide with adoption of measures to provide for public welfare."

Jones charges Long with intending, had he been elected governor, to defeat the amendment and keep the tax permanently.

"The outgoing governor repeatedly refused to abolish the sales tax," says Jones. "He could have done so by legislative act at the special session of the legislature he called in January but instead he used the subterfuge of a constitutional amendment which he undoubtedly would have defeated had he been elected."

It was also at the January special session that the three other constitutional proposals received legislative authorization to be placed on Tuesday's ballots.

At the same session between primaries, Governor Long's willing assembly enacted such vote-appealing measures as a $1,000,000 appropriation for dispensing free lunches to school children without, however, providing any way to raise the money.

Jones is silent about the other three amendments. In the order in which they'll appear on the ballots, the sales tax proposal being first, their effect would be:

1. Authorize the Orleans levee board to donate the federal government a tract on Lake Pontchartrain as site for a coast guard station.
2. Exempt motor fuels used in airplanes, boats and farm machinery from the gasoline tax.
3. Segregate severance tax revenues exclusively for public schools.
4. Some attorneys believe altering the scope of the gasoline tax may be unconstitutional as yields based on its present form are pledged as security for state highway bonds.

Four state officers will be reelected in the perfunctory balloting, Harry D. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture; Lucille May Grace, register of the state land office; L. B. Baynard, state auditor, and A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer.

Four new state officers, besides Jones, will be formally installed; John E. Cox, state superintendent of education, succeeding T. H. Harris; James A. Grenillion, secretary of state, succeeding E. A. Conway; Eugene Stanley, attorney general, succeeding Lessley Gardner; and Dr. Marc C. Mouton, lieutenant-governor, succeeding Coleman Lindsey.

Since the election is a general one, voters may write in the name of any independent candidate who has qualified by having filed a statement of his independent candidacy 10 days before the election. Space on the ballot is provided for this purpose but no announcement has been made of any independent having so qualified.

Voters may vote the straight Democratic ticket, obviating the trouble of stamping the blank after the name of each candidate, by stamping the spurred rooster emblem at the top of the Democratic slate.

Each constitutional amendment proposal must be stamped separately, however, whether the straight ticket is voted or not.

Here's a view of Ruston's new high school, showing the recently completed home economics building at the right, photographed from an airplane flying over the school's nearby athletic plant by E. S. Richardson, Jr., Louisiana Tech photographer. The magnificent and spacious main building and other school properties are located on 43 acres in the northwest part of Ruston, with a total financial outlay of about $700,000 in which the PWA and WPA collaborated. The principal structure includes 87,860 feet of floor space, 71.5 per cent of which is devoted to instructional use. Caldwell Brothers and Hart of New Orleans were the general contractors and the architectural firm of J. W. Smith and Associates of Monroe prepared the plans.—(Photo by courtesy of Louisiana Tech news bureau.)

HELP PROMISED TO NORWEGIANS

the fjord to attack the German destroyers, some of them already damaged, who were sheltering in the harbor, and also to engage any shore batteries which might have been erected.

"According to reports which have been received from the commander-in-chief, Vice Admiral Whitworth, hoisting his flag in the Warspite, commanded the attack, which was extremely successful.

"Enemy opposition was not found to be remarkably severe.

"A field howitzer which had been mounted ashore was put out of action by the fire of H. M. S. Cossack.

"Four German destroyers were shattered and sunk in Narvik bay.

"Others fled up Rumbachs fjord, a small inlet eight or nine miles long behind Narvik town.

"These also were pursued and destroyed.

"At the moment of issuing this communique, the admiralty is not precisely informed as to the conditions in Narvik town.

"Parties of men, possibly German soldiers, have been seen escaping from over the hills, and further details are awaited.

"No estimate can be made at present of German losses in personnel, but the seven destroyers sunk must have counted over 1,000 men.

"The admiralty has signalled congratulations to Commander-in-Chief, Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Forbes, to Vice-Admiral Whitworth, and to the officers and men engaged in this vigorous, daring and skillfully conducted action, which may well tend to clarify the situation on this part of the Norwegian coast.

"Operations are still proceeding."

By directing the audacious attack, Vice-Admiral William Jock Whitworth, on the bridge of the Warspite, became the new man of the hour to Britons, who love nothing more than a good sea fight.

To maneuver a warship the size of the 30,600-ton Warspite with its eight 15-inch guns into the narrow, rock-studded fjord leading to Narvik called for super-seamanship.

The Stockholm radio broadcast a report that several large British warships were effecting landings at Narvik under heavy bombardment from German warplanes and land forces. Heavy losses were reported on both sides.

The prospect also arose that the men fleeing Narvik, if they were German troops, would run into Norwegian forces reported gathering in the vicinity.

While the British fleet put words into action, Great Britain's King George VI in a message of cheer to King Haakon of Norway, assured the Norwegian monarch that the allies "are bringing all help in their power" to break Adolf Hitler's hold on the Scandinavian kingdom.

He expressed "my profound admiration and that of the whole British commonwealth for the dignity, courage and tenacity shown by your majesty and your people."

The king's message was preceded by a special broadcast in which British military strategists told the fighting Norwegians:

"Allied help is coming and coming quickly! Hold out!"

A broadcast to Norway by a British general gave the defenders military tips on how to fight the German land forces.

They were told to fell trees and destroy bridges to check the advance of the Nazi blitz troops, and to hasten to the nearest British or Norwegian military headquarters with any news they heard about movement of the German units.

The broadcast, keynote of the British Broadcasting company's new news service for Norwegians, concluded:

"Allied help is coming and coming quickly! Hold out! Long live Norway! Long live King Haakon!"

At acknowledged high cost in planes and pilots, the fleet air arm and royal air force recounted these new exploits:

Bombardment of the Stavanger air-drome "with salvos of heavy bombs," with heavy damage to a hangar and planes and the shooting down of a two-engine German fighter by a wounded R. A. F. pilot.

Destruction of a Nazi munitions warehouse at Bergen;

The bombing of three more big German supply-transport ships;

The machine-gunning of a German destroyer and motor torpedo boat;

Destruction of at least four other German fighting planes.

A total of 11 British planes were acknowledged lost since early Friday (the Germans claimed 12).

British official sources avoided mention of what they intend to do with the allied expeditionary force of 100,000 men which was declared ready to go to Finland when Finland, just a month ago, decided not to fight Russia any more, but there is a general supposition that at least some of these troops still are ready for action.

(British censorship forbids mention of the possibility that this force will be sent to Norway.)

However, since troops in movement at sea are a most vulnerable target, it is doubtful whether the allies will care to risk large-scale landings in Scandinavia until they can be sure of offering adequate sea and air protection.

The admiralty showed no inclination to "lift the veil" (as Winston Churchill put it) from the home fleet's far-flung operations, but most observers believed the broad plan was to sweep the seas clear of German naval units, and beat back Nazi warplanes so that the allies can render real aid to the struggling Norwegian land forces.

Persistent British attacks on German supply and transport ships and munitions bases in Norway thus are follow-ups to the plugging of the Skagerrak and Kattegat with mines, in order to isolate the invaders, deprive them of supplies and keep the German fleet in the open where the British can take its time about smashing it, unit for unit.

The fleet, however, is avoiding entrapment in the long and narrow Norwegian coastal fjords where the Germans have seized and reinforced coastal guns.

In new fleet air arm operations at Bergen, it was disclosed today, one British plane was forced down at sea near an island and the crew of two were seen abandoning their machine. However, a plane of the R. A. F. coastal command gave a good account of itself in action against a German destroyer and a Dornier flying boat, according to a British account.

The British plane dropped through clouds of swirling snow straight at the German warship. The gunner raked her decks from 500 feet with machine-gun fire. Then he poured a stream of bullets at the flying boat.

"The Dornier lost height and soon said, is a report that agents of Moscow and Berlin intend to recruit soldiers in this country for their coup, as volunteers were recruited for the Spanish Civil war.

Dies said that the sources of his information included "elective officials" in the republic and "one or two United States senators."

Dies asserted that 10,000 Communists already had moved into Mexico from Spain and France and "the same crowd is perfecting plans to do in Mexico the same thing they did in Spain."

He said the outside forces would attempt to swing the July national election and thus win their objective by civil means but were prepared to resort to open revolt.

For use in the latter eventuality, the chairman declared, Russia is keeping alive "the same organizations" which were active in this country during the Spanish Civil war.

In connection with the report, it was learned, the committee recently invited Diego Rivera, Mexican artist, to testify, but he refused to come to the United States.

BUNDSMAN FOUND HANGING IN HOUSE

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP) 24 hour search for Claus Gunther Ernecke, 36, missing defendant at the trial of 17 men accused of plotting to overthrow the United States government, ended today in the basement of a Brooklyn apartment house, two blocks from his home.

Apparently terrified by threats against his life, and fearful of the outcome of the trial in federal court, Ernecke, a German-American bundsman and former trooper in the New York national guard, had hanged himself.

Medical examiners said he had been dead at least 36 hours.

Ernecke's last appearance in court was on Wednesday when the government's chief witness, Dennis Healy, who had named Ernecke as one of the ringleaders in the alleged plot, fainting on the witness stand after three days of cross-examination.

As soon as he heard Ernecke's body had been found the defendant's Attorney Leo Healy, said he was "afraid something like that would happen" because Ernecke had acted like a man in despair when he last talked to him.

"What'll I do! What'll I do!" he kept telling me, Healy recalled. "He walked up and down, up and down, talking about the case and the threats against his life."

Ernecke was a native of Berlin and had obtained first naturalization papers here. He was a salesman and had served two national guard enlistments.

HOLLAND READY TO STRIKE BACK

scheme of land, sea and water-line defense.

Heretofore, however, the northeastern provinces of Groningen, Drenthe and Overijssel, flanking the broad reaches of the IJsselmeer (Zuider Zee), had no such zones, and other provinces were not completely encased in the state of siege.

Since the war spread to Scandinavia, within easy striking distance of the coasts of Groningen and its off-shore islands, much concern has been manifested in both the Netherlands and Belgium.

There have been charges both from Germany and from the allies that "the other side" is threatening a surprise attack on the low countries.

The average Hollander seems heartened by the strong defense measures which his government has taken (their exact nature is a military secret) and by the knowledge that well-equipped army and naval forces are fully prepared to resist any surprise attack, either on the eastern frontier or along the north sea coast.

However, there are signs of uneasiness amongst some foreigners.

British nationals, for instance, have been advised to report to their consulates at Amsterdam and Rotterdam the moment any emergency arises.

The government press service emphasized the government's determination to stick to its policy of independent neutrality (Holland has no defense or nonaggression pacts with any country, not even Belgium). It said the government would make no advance arrangements with any belligerent for aid in case of attack.

The army guards in Belgium were described officially as precautionary, "because of the general tension." Additional army leaves were banned.

There has been a constant rising of the emotional temperature in Brussels in the last few days, and the Belgian franc has been falling slowly.

both engines were afire," said the official report.

The British plane got home with a bullet hole in its gasoline tank.

WHERE NAVAL BATTLES RAGED

This map shows where Great Britain and Germany engaged in bitter naval conflict off Jutland, the Danish peninsula scene of the historic World War engagement. Meanwhile the fighting continued along the entire Norwegian coast. Centers of the greatest activity were Bergen (1) where the Germans claimed they captured five British munitions ships; Stavanger (2) where a Norwegian destroyer was reported to have sunk a German troop ship, only to be sunk, itself, by German bombers; the Skagerrak (3) where England poured her warships into the straits to trap the Germans; off Marstrand (4) in the Kattegat where German troop ships were sunk; in Oslo fjord (5) where the German cruiser Emden was reported sunk by a Norwegian training ship. There was a report that the Norwegians had recaptured Hamar (6), set up as the temporary Norwegian capital after Oslo was abandoned. The German high command claimed the capture of Bornholm (7), Danish island strategically located at the tip of Sweden.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ. Scientist, Sunday, April 14, 1940.

The golden text is: "The Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; He will save us." (Isa. 33).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. In Him was life, and the life was the light of men." (John 1).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Everything good or worthy, God made. Whatever is valueless or baneful, He did not make—hence its un-creativity." (p. 325).

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Corner St. John and Oak Streets
R. T. Watson, Minister

Sunday school 9:45 a. m.

Divine worship 10:50 a. m. The sermon topic will be "The Significance of the Lord's Supper."

Our attendance has been splendid for the past few months. Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is, but let us be in the spirit on the Lord's day.

The senior Christian Endeavor society will meet at 6:30 p. m. The intermediate C. E. society will meet at 6:45 p. m. Evening service at 7:30 p. m. Sermon theme, "What is a Name?" Our attendance is good at these informal evening services. There will be special music at both services.

Choir practice will be held Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. If you can help with the music you are urged to come.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Services for the third Sunday after Easter are as follows: The Holy Eucharist at 7:30 a. m. Church school at 9:30 a. m., and morning prayer and sermon at 10:45 a. m. The only service during the week is on Wednesday at 9 a. m., at which time the Holy Eucharist will be celebrated. The women's auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Fagan Cox in her home, 4300 South Grand street, on Tuesday from 4 until 6 p. m., at which time a silver tea and a display of antiques will be held. All the members of Grace church are expected to attend and to bring as many of their friends as convenient.

Meditation. Read St. Luke 22:24-37. Here in a nutshell is the whole human drama. Three sets of strong desires: (1) men, most naturally desiring to be accounted great. (2) Satan capitalizing human ambition for his own evil desires. (3) And the Son of God, praying for His friends that their desires may be for the greatness which only God can give. Whether we be in a personal Satan or not, most of us have discovered with St. Paul that even when we would do good, evil is present with us. But there is more glorious discovery to make. It is this: that the Son of God has been praying for you. Hold on to that. Believe it. Let Christ save the day for you in the battle of the three desires. To know that Christ is praying for you even now is first hand experience and first hand help. A bishop said: "Our contact with Christ is too often only indirect. We have inherited beliefs and standards which were generated in certain lives perhaps long ago. We know Christianity only at second hand."

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH Harrison and Darbonne Shenense Addition

The Epworth League meets at 6:45. "The Society of Christian Service" meets at the church Tuesday. The Warner Memorial class will have their monthly meeting Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the church annex. On Tuesday evening at the Ouchita parish school the Methodist National Temperance will sponsor a drama "Prisoner at the Bar." This will be given by local talent with several of our members taking part. Friday at 10 a. m. there will be held at the First Methodist church in West Monroe a district meeting of the Society of Christian Service. All women of the district are urged to attend.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH West Monroe Dr. C. Karlos Smith, Pastor

We are consistently growing every Sunday and we feel sure that our record attendance will keep up now that everything is well organized and working as never before. We are expecting 500 in attendance at the Sunday school and a church filled with people for the services at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. Special reserved seats for the members of the Missionary society. You will find a welcome at every service. A growing church in a growing community.

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH J. M. Alford, Pastor

The church school exercises open today at 9:45 a. m. which will be followed by the regular worship service at 11:00 o'clock. At this time the subject will be: "Experimental Religion." At the evening hour the theme of the discourse will be along evangelistic lines. The young people will meet for their league work at 6:45 p. m. The Missionary society will meet Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the church for their program work, and will be led by Mrs. H. D. Dennis. The church board of Christian education met Wednesday evening and transacted important business. Mrs. C. L. Taylor, the chairman, presided. Every department of the church is functioning in a fine way. Two splendid congregations assembled last Sunday and the interest in all the work was excellent. "We thank God and take courage." Come and worship with us today, bring your friends and join us in prayer for victory in the work of our Lord and Saviour!

STONE AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH I. L. Yeager, Pastor

A tragic report once came from the diamond fields of South Africa, stating that several Europeans and a large number of native miners were entombed in the DeBeers pit at Kimberley. What empty mockery, in that hour of death, must have been the presence of the rich gems about them! But such accidents do not belong only to South Africa, nor to the diamond pits alone; men may be smothered to death just as surely in a spiritual way.

Make today a red-letter day with you. Attend the sanctuary of the Lord. Your obligation is to your own church, but if you have not identified yourself with some particular church, we cordially invite you to worship with us in the services of the day, beginning with Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. A message will be delivered at 11 a. m. The subject to be used will be "Heathenism in the Modern Church." Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p. m. Miss June Mayo was appointed leader. The evening service will begin at 7:30. The subject will be "Spiritism." Can the living communicate with the dead? This question will be answered in the evening service. Circles will meet with Mrs. Walter Perkins at 3:15. Lee avenue Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. At the prayer service hour Wednesday evening at 7:30. Dr. W. L. Doss, Jr., the district superintendent, will hold the second quarterly conference.

As we reach the half-way mark in the Ten Weeks Loyalty campaign, we are gratified with the results. Never in the history of the church has the attendance equaled the present attendance. The spiritual life of the church is being deepened. The enrollment is continually increasing.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH Grammont At Catalpa Ernest Holloway, Pastor

"A Sacred Sense of Responsibility" is the theme of our meditation for the morning worship. Our congregational advancement will be determined by our loyalty, fidelity and will to do. Will you hear us this Lord's day as we think together about the consequences of responsibility evaded? "Can man know God" is the subject of the evening message. Is God knowable? Can the finite mind of man apprehend the infinite nature of God? This is the second message in a series of four, dealing with God. "Be still and know God." The Sabbath school attendance is good, and yet we are far from our goal, which is four hundred. Are you one of the regular attendants? If not, today is the time to attend. Our annual revival is in the offing. The preacher is the Rev. Charles L. King, pastor, the First Presbyterian church, Houston, Tex. The dates of the revival are Monday May 6 through Sunday May 12. He is able, devoted, consecrated, and sincere. Our ministry is spiritual and we are seeking to inspire, illuminate, and intensify the religious ambitions of our worshippers. A hearty and sincere welcome awaits you!

TWO BROTHERS KILLED IN AUTO-TRAIN CRASH

LAUREL, Miss., April 13.—(P)—Gates and Hugh Boyles, 31 and 42-year-old brothers, were killed instantly today in a collision between their light motor truck and north-bound Southeastern railway passenger train No. 44 on a grade crossing in north Laurel.

The brothers, residents of West Laurel, were driving to their homes with a load of stove wood.

Surviving Gates Boyles are his widow and three children. Hugh Boyles is survived by his widow and four children. Their mother and a brother and several sisters also survive.

ELASTIC FISH

NORMAN, Okla.—(P)—Rubber veins hold the sharks together at Oklahoma university. A rubber substance is injected into the veins of sharks used in the dissecting classes. Arteries are filled with red rubber and veins with dark blue. The rubber makes the sharks "stretchy."

Carrying two cannons capable of sinking a submarine, and a cluster of machine guns, making 60 miles per hour, the twin-engine Grumman monoplane is considered the fastest, most deadly pursuit plane ever built.

Why Let Stomach Ulcer Pains Starve You?

A great specialist found that by using bismuth to coat the stomach lining on the sensitive parts, thus preventing the irritating action of digestive secretions and foods, enables many sufferers of acid stomach ulcer pains to eat a hearty meal—even steak and corn beef and cabbage—without severe after-pains. Udgas Tablets contain bismuth and other valuable ingredients in a balanced formula. They have been praised by thousands. Try a 25c box of Udgas for relief of ulcer and stomach pains, indigestion, gas, pain, heartburn, burning sensation, bloating and other conditions caused by excess acid. Ever-Widening War

The European war has, over night, become a menacing, frightening war, whose scope, through a swift and dramatic Nazi move, has been extended to the north and may soon reach down into the Balkans, ultimately engulfing all of Europe, including those nations that escaped the blight of war's withering touch a quarter of a century ago.

Obviously, the bold stroke of the Nazis had been long and carefully planned. Two army corps can not be transported over water and landed on an alien shore in the twinkling of an eye.

Confronted suddenly with this fait accompli, the allies must decide soon the changes in strategy and objectives which the altered situation makes necessary. Will the purpose continue to be the accomplishment of economic strangulation, made more difficult by Nazi invasion of Scandinavia, or will there be a military venture on the theory that the extension of Germany's lines across Denmark and into Norway must necessarily involve a weakening of its position at some vital point?

For the time being, the allies appear to be devoting all their energies toward driving the enemy out of Norway. If this effort succeeds, it will be the first great allied victory of the war.

Today the European war is in an unpredictable stage, at least from the viewpoint of uniformed observers.

In the minds of the German high command, which moves with swiftness and decision, there is no doubt a clear pattern of events and purposes, due to unfold under dramatic circumstances when the moment is opportune. And no doubt the allies have their own plans for bringing the war to a decision.

At any rate, Europe is ablaze. Small nations may expect to perish and large nations must anticipate the day when they will be embroiled and possibly consumed.

It behooves the United States to become increasingly cautious.

GERM EAT GERM

Of thousands of millions of creatures that once trod, crawled upon or flew over the earth there is no physical trace. To soil bacteria is charged this work of dissolution.

Good news, indeed—to mankind at least—if capable of demonstration in a large way, is the declaration that these very soil bacteria produce chemicals, capable of being isolated, which destroy the germs of pneumonia type three. Behind this discovery, announced at Cleveland by Dr. Rene J. Dubos of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, is the hope that further experimentation with soil bacteria will produce chemicals that will feed on other germs that infest man, notably those of tuberculosis.

Prediction as to the ultimate scope of this discovery is vain. That is for protracted experimentation through the years to determine. The principle involved is that the chemicals isolated from bacteria of the soil are themselves living entities with a "sweet tooth" that makes them feed on the sugar coating of particular germs, scoring almost all others. The problem becomes one of finding the right chemical for the particular germ.

To the layman the very terms of discussion of the problem by scientists are all Greek. It is something, however, to know that the study is going on, and that there is basis for hope—"belief" is too strong—that other types of disease will yield to the voracious appetites of chemicals from segregated soil bacteria.

NEW YORK GROWS UP

New York City is getting to be quite an up-and-coming town.

The last farm in Manhattan has finally given up the ghost and turned itself into a parking-place.

Vincenzo Benedetto, 10th avenue and 214th street, held out as long as he could. Practically every year he was good for a story in the papers about "the last farm in Manhattan." In fact, Benedetto himself wearied of this. "Go 'way," he would say. "I am sick and tired of talking about the farm." Well, he needn't talk any more. Beneath the spreading cherry trees, the clustered autos park.

This climax of urbanization came just in time. For the present census is almost sure to show a trend toward semi-rural living. Vincenzo Benedetto may prove to have been a fleck of foam on the very crest of a wave of urbanization which now begins to recede.

It becomes plainer every day that up until election day the presidential candidates will be unanimous for keeping the United States out of war.

The new Bank of England one-pound note is blue. It may do the business. Green money once helped the United States win a war.

The bombing plane has taken the place of the warhorse all right, but to date it lacks a lot of the warhorse's dramatic appeal.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—The first crack in building trade wages is appearing. Offers by both A. F. of L. and C. I. O. construction trade unions to cut daily wages of skilled builders on small-house work from $11 and $15 a day to around $9 may open the way for the long-deferred building boom.

The old capitalist theory of competition as benefitting the consumer is felt here in labor. The A. F. of L. has long had a monopoly on that half of building trade workers who were organized. But now the C. I. O., led by A. D. Lewis, brother of John L., is entering the building field with new industrial unions. Counter-offers by the rival groups to associations of contractors have resulted in the impending cut in daily wages.

The A. F. of L. first offered, in effect, to reduce and standardize wages for skilled labor in smallhouse construction. Proposal is to set a flat daily rate, probably $9, for all skilled labor in the building trades, with helpers getting around $4 or $5 and common labor somewhat less.

The C. I. O.'s new United Construction Workers' Organizing committee countered by suggesting to the New York Building Trades Employers' association that it deal with the C. I. O. on a basis of a straight $9-a-day top scale and freedom from all jurisdictional disputes.

Struggle For Organization
Prize at stake is the army of workers who now build most of the nation's small homes. No one knows exactly how many there are; estimates range all the way from 500,000 to 2,000,000. Whatever the total, more than half are unorganized.
C. I. O. never has had very high

Greater Efficiency Is Expected

John P. Coyne, head of the A. F. of L.'s building trades department, points out that the present proposal applies only to New York. However, it is admitted that if it works there it will be introduced all over the country.

The C. I. O. is not expected to make very rapid progress in the New York area, partly because the building trades employers are used to dealing with the A. F. of L. and partly because—since the C. I. O. building group is weak there and the A. F. of L. group is powerful—the A. F. of L. would have the bigger guns in a scrap. Out in the country the situation may be different; in steel, coal and textile centers, where the C. I. O. is strong, the Lewis drive may make good progress.

The A. F. of L. proposal would not affect scales on construction of urban apartments, office buildings, hotels and the like.

Farley And F. D. R. Are Still Friends

Don't be in a hurry to interpret Jim Farley's flat statement that he is a stick-to-the-finish candidate for the presidency as a sign that he is on the outs with F. D. R. Shortly before he made this statement, Farley confided to friends here that he was definitely convinced that Mr. Roosevelt does not want the nomination for himself.

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.—Dear Staff: A seasonal tip to you, muh hearties. If you want to be kingpins in Hollywood society this spring, get salty, buy a yacht (anything from a rowboat to a transatlantic liner qualifies in Filmmville-by-the-Sea) and develop a nautical swagger, like Frank Morgan's. Learn the difference between a ratline and a sheet, a jip and a jibe. Box your compass (instead of your wife) every morning, and lash your tiller nightly—for everyone who really matters is putting out to sea.

Why, it's getting so all our best soirees are nothing more than fo'c'sle yarnings sessions. Over in on corner, deep water skippers like Vic McLaglen, Jimmy Cagney, Lee Tracy and Eddie Albert com the barnacles from their brine-encrusted looks while telling how they've conquered the dangerous, tornado-swept Catalina channel; in another, their respective spouses discuss latest styles in yachting togs. And the poor landmen are left dawdling and conspicuous in the middle of the room, with nothing to do but pan producers who have already been panned so long the sport's no longer interesting.

Of course, I can anticipate your comeback. You don't let that stop you. "Yacht." But don't let that stop you—neither can nine-tenths of the Hollywood mariners who have 'em. It isn't necessary to buy a yacht. In fact, all you need is a yachting cap, a little sea-going cant, and the price of a luncheon in the Brown Derby so you can parade your costume. As far as the nautical swagger is concerned, Mae West can teach you that.

—JIMMIE FIDLER.
Dear Boss: Aren't you being just a bit presumptuous in giving us nautical advice after all the weeks we've been forced to paddle our own canoe—while you gaddied about the country hunting for that guy who wanted your autograph?
Anyway, here's your gull's-eye view of today-in-Hollywood: Penny Singleton, whose tinkly voice ought to be perfect, is recording a series of bedtime stories for a phonograph company. . . . Margie Hart, well-curved New York strip-pleaser, has penned her autobiography for a confessions mag. In it, she bows to Joan Crawford, Lana Turner, Hedy Lamarr, Dot Lamour and Carole Gable as the screen's ace fem bodies. . . . Warners are grooming Edward G. Robinson in case Paul Muni makes good his threat to do only one movie a year. If Jackie Coogan clicks in that "Thank You Columbus" stage role, Producers Curt Bois and G. V. Gontard will star him in a revival of "Charlie's Aunt."

... Bert Wheeler and Ann Taylor, former cig gal at Ciro's who's now an N. T. G. shapely, are serious. . . . Jockey Jackie Westrope vows to fight stewards who ruled him off California tracks if it takes all the dough he and Nan (Mrs. Westrope) Grey can muster.

Rudy Vallee is sponsoring Jackie Mearle, 11-year-old clairvoyant, on a tour of eastern theaters. . . . Are Jerry Cooper, the radio baritone, and Joan Mitchell, Broadway showgirl, secretly married? . . . And what's this "Scarlett O'Hara" act Metro's staging as a prelude to casting the Jody role in "The Yearling"? Despite 9,000 kids interviewed and hundreds of tests shot, we'll betcha two to one the final choice isn't a mile from Hollywood right now. . . . Mary Anderson, that luscious Alabama beauty contracted by Warner Brothers, gets her screen break in "Episode," now readying.

Boss, you can credit Chris-Pin Martin with the season's daffiest idea for profit. He wants to ship dirt from his Arizona gold mine to the San Francisco World's fair and charge the easterners a fee to pan their own!

Possibility that Judy Garland will be yanked from Bob Hope's air show may break on a new movie-radio war. . . . Woe's this re Orson Welles retrenching financially by moving into the Hollywood Y. M. C. A.? . . . Looks like Ann Sheridan's successful song number in "It All Came True" was a milestone—she'll warble four originals in her next. . . . Vic McLaglen, who vowed he never would, plans to enter a string of bangtails in next season's Santa Anita races. . . . Ann Southern is asking studio permission to accept a proffered 13-week pay tour in South America, come June.

It's Maxie Rosenbloom, a REAL expert, who's coaching Jane Withers in East Side lingo for "The Brat." . . . How many have seen that undraped picture of a famous screen figure (guess who) hanging over W. C. Fields' bed? . . . Helen Vinson flies to NY to appear in court (22nd) as witness in her own suit to recover $50 grand paid to the insurance representative who allegedly failed to turn the cash over to his company. . . . Boss, Joan Davis is disillusioned. She tried to give junior college kids a serious talk on the drama the other night—and they kept asking her to do pratt-falls.

It is through cooperation and persuasion and not through violence that man shall realize his great destiny.—Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's foreign minister.

Another war to save democracy is pure hypocrisy; you destroy justice in the very act of taking up the sword to defend it.—Rev. Theodore C. Mayer, Cleveland pastor.

BARBS

The Hollywood rumor has not yet been confirmed that Sonja Henie has been cast as Eliza, to cross the ice on figure skates with a ballet of bloodhounds behind.

Counterfeit money production, we read, is on the decline. Evidently the hot cash artists found it more expensive to make money and pay taxes than to have it at all.

Congress begins economizing again, just like the wife who spends $18.98 for her sixth spring hat and saves $102 because it's marked down from $20.

Germany begins worrying about next winter's coal shortage, evidently firm in the belief that Europe will still be on the map at that time.

Human Side Of The News OUR CHILDREN

By EDWIN C. HILL (Copyright, 1940, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Two New York doctors, Lauretta Bender and M. A. Spalding, of Bellevue hospital, report, after prolonged investigation, that Father Divine's cult is profoundly disturbing family life in Harlem and leaving in the wake of the "angels" a trail of broken homes and problem children. There is involved not only the physical neglect of the children, as their parents "enter into the kingdom," but there are at work confusing and disruptive emotional forces, inimical to healthy family life.

The investigators report increasing juvenile delinquency and bewilderment in the domain of Father Divine's "heavens." We have had no means to check the above findings, which appear in "The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease," but they are highly plausible in the light of the disastrous effect of other outside emotional tensions and loyalties on family life in the post-war years.

Both the super-state and feverishly evangelical religion appear to be the enemies of the institutional family unit as we have known it in America. From our traditional viewpoint, perhaps the most shocking story of the totalitarian mania has been the state's invasion of the home and the alienation of children from their parents.

From both Russia and Germany, and to a lesser degree from Italy, have come tales of children being compelled to spy on their parents; of parents stripped of all authority and dignity in their homes; of the absolute subjugation of the family to the brutal mandates of an all-pervasive Gestapo, from which no firebrand is safe.

While there is perhaps, among the totalitarian gangs a coldly premeditated assault on the family, the ruin wrought by millennial cults, such as that of Father Divine, is perhaps incidental to the confusion of divided loyalties. The devotee is ecstatically drawn into a larger family whose emotional cohesion is stronger than any earthly family ties. So it was with Elijah Dowie's amazing Zion City millennial, north of Chicago, about 35 years ago. At that time, psychologists were profoundly interested in psychopaths phases of the new Zion and their blighting effects on family life.

The normal family of modern times has been a slow evolution, and has attained varying forms under different conditions. It is roughly true that a strong state means a weak family and vice versa. Margaret Mead's book, "Growing Up in Samoa," written several years ago, after years of research by Miss Mead, is highly pertinent to latter-day stress and strain in family life, if one considers its deeper implications.

In Samoa, the tribe is essentially a family, under the simple conditions of life, and left to themselves, the people have evolved an easy and natural arrangement for the induction of the child into the tribe. This occurs, with an ancient tribal ceremony, when the child attains physical maturity. Miss Mead votes an easy transition into full tribal status with none of the emotional disturbance, or lingering juvenescence, so distressingly in evidence as youth of the western world tries to find its way into adulthood.

For very definite reasons, aside from the obvious considerations of morality and religion, the maintenance of traditional family life is imperatively important in the modern world. Scientists ground these reasons deeply in biology, briefly thus: a baby chick will scramble out of its shell and start running around and peeping; a newborn foal will walk off by its mother's side; a human infant is helpless for a long time after birth. As you go up in the scale of organic complexity, more of the development is post-natal and less pre-natal.

In primitive human society, still citing Samoa, the child is an adult at the threshold of physical maturity.

As a matter of fact, a larger percentage of young people nearing 20 years old are going to school than ever before. Don't be frightened about the future of the United States. Twenty years from now, there will be at least 15 million more people here than there are today. Although the birth rate is only half what it was 50 years ago; nevertheless, there is still a couple million babies being born each year.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Jack Stinnett

WASHINGTON—Pity the poor federal communications commission. Junior's home-work in arithmetic isn't even A-B-C compared to the problems that James Lawrence Fly's commission has to solve.

Take Frequency Modulation—hereinafter referred to as FM. Even the name sounds tough. If you are not up on your radio broadcasting and reception, developed principally by Major Edwin Armstrong, the man who gave the world the superheterodyne.

About all you and I have to know is that "high-frequency" means broadcast and reception in the upper megacycles, as opposed to standard amplitude modulation, which is broadcast and received on the lower-bracket wave-lengths, or frequencies. Even the dub knows what "static" means. "High fidelity" means you can broadcast anything from a grunt basso to the overtones in a fiddler's upper register—and the right sound will come out in the business end of your receiver.

If There Were All
Now there's no argument that all this would improve broadcasting and reception. The FCC would be only too glad to admit that, if there were nothing else involved. But there are "knowns" in the problem that produce "unknowns" in any answer you work out.

For instance, there are two schools of FM thinkers—the wide band and the narrow band. Major Armstrong and his troops belong to the wide-band army—and they say they need licenses in the very heart of the television broadcasting range. The narrow band boys (RCA, with its crack about "we're ready for FM any time you are," is the leader here) say you don't need the wideband units to make the public take notice. Of course, both sides hold patents.

But that isn't all. FM broadcasting (and consequently reception) has a horizon limit—like television. So, if licenses are granted to broadcasting stations in cities where do the farmers and villagers come in?

Also, if FCC granted FM licenses to every station in the country, where would 45,000,000 radio receiving sets come in? Not at all!

Also, if FCC gives away television's choice wave bands, where will television come in?

If you don't think FCC has a headache, put that problem down on paper and try to find the answer—but don't lose your temper and throw your radio set out the window.

Five Or 10 Years

Mr. Fly and his sextet of experts are being paid to see the march of progress doesn't trample right over your pocketbook. As near as I can find out, here's what is going to happen: Five to 10 years from now (barring a hundred or so unforeseen possibilities) you and I will be listening to some kind of FM broadcasting, on FM receivers.

Lily Pons can take her highest note and will hear every quaver in it. In the broadcasting studio, nails can be hit with a hammer and it'll sound like nails being hit with a hammer. A bell can be rung and it'll sound as if some one rang the bell. A pumpkin can be dropped on the floor and it'll sound "squish"—not like a man being hit over the head as it does today.

In the meantime, maybe some of us will have FM units (cost, $39.50 and up today—but they'll get cheaper later on); or dual receivers for FM and standard receiving (cost: $125 and up—but they'll come down, too). Broadcasting stations using both types, will supplement standard broadcasts with FM stuff—and if the public really goes for the FM fast, they will increase it and decrease the other until the old squawk-and-chatter days of radio are as dead as the flicker days of films.

Hohenzollern Prince Still Wears a Crown

NOT all the Hohenzollerns have lost their thrones. King Carol II of Rumania is a member of the same royal family that once ruled imperial Germany.

Rumania's king traces his succession through his father, Ferdinand, to his great-uncle, Carol I, first ruler of independent Rumania, shown on the Rumanian stamp, above, one of a series of 14 commemorating the 100th anniversary of his birth.

Carol I was elected prince by the Rumanian people in 1863. They rejected a native king, chose the second son of Charles Anthony of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen. When Rumania became independent in 1888, Carol I was crowned king, ruled until his death in 1914. Carol I had no heir, and his nephew Ferdinand was named his successor.

UNION SELECTS 14 PARISH DELEGATES

MARION, April 13.—(Special)—At a meeting of the Union Parish Democratic executive committee in Farmerville Friday the question of the manner in which delegates to the state convention to be held in Baton Rouge on June 4 for the purpose of electing delegates and alternates to the national Democratic convention in Chicago in July, the naming of presidential electors and the electing of a national committeeman and national committeewoman, was fully discussed. It was brought out at the meeting that to elect delegates by primary election would cost almost a thousand dollars. After going into the matter thoroughly it was decided that inasmuch as the parish committee was elected in January primary and was thus fresh from the people, that the only feasible procedure to take was for the committee to elect the delegates.

The delegates elected were Mrs. Harrel N. Albright, Farmerville; A. C. Allen, Downsville; R. L. Hill, Haile; W. H. Harris, Bernice; K. D. Lankford, Haile; J. M. Talbot, Bernice; K. S. Thompson and B. K. Watson, Marion; A. C. Dykes and S. A. Gibson, Farmerville; Dr. M. W. Laurence, Bernice; Tom F. Terrall, Cherry Ridge; R. M. Murphy, Downsville, and Doyle Smith, Farmerville. The eight first named are members of the parish committee and Doyle Smith is a member of the state central committee.

How To Lose Fat and Get More Youthful Feeling

All over the world the Kruschen Plan is appealing to great numbers of girls and women who want to promptly and safely lose fat and get more attractive figures—Take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water first thing every morning. Cut down your caloric intake. Eat wisely and satisfactorily.

Be sure to do this EVERY morning. Don't miss this little dose of Kruschen for by so doing excess poisonous waste matter, acids and gas are gently expelled from the system. Liver, kidneys and bowels are gently activated by Kruschen's aperient and diuretic properties and because of this the usually follows "that Kruschen feeling" of more energy, greater vivacity, improved health and more youthful feeling which reduction of excess fat so often brings.

Get a jar of Kruschen today at any drugstore. It lasts 4 weeks. Money back if not joyfully satisfied.—Adv.

PAWN OF WARRING POWERS

The inhabitants of Narvik (above), important Norwegian port, were blasted from sleep at dawn by a naval battle in the city's "front yard," when British destroyers attacked German warships in the harbor. The German ships, protecting a landing force which had seized the city, repulsed the attack, sinking one British destroyer and forcing another aground.

LOST SUNRISE
by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALLMENT XIII
Gwen said, slowly, "Oh yes, I'll tell you, because I simply must. I can't go in and pretend that I'm not devastated, and I'll be sure to mention the box sooner or later. Every one isn't as jealous as you are, Van!"

Van had her hand again, tight in his own.

"I love you so much," he said. "You wonderful, wonderful woman. As long as I live I shall never forget leaning over your shoulder tonight, with your hair against my cheek, Gwen."

She made no answer. It was too bad, she thought, that he should feel so. Within her being there was no response, no sudden uplift of fear and joy, such as Dick's gruffest word had power to arouse in her. With Van she felt only immense embarrassment and reluctance and sympathy for his feeling. As soon as she and Dick had settled their plans he would know of it, she thought uncomfortably, and then he would find some other woman. Meanwhile—if only he wouldn't grow affectionate—

When they reached her corner she said something shyly about not being able to ask him to come up. Oh no, he said quickly, adding, "And when do I see you again, darling?"

"Soon." This was awkward, getting away. They were on the sidewalk when he put his arms about her and kissed her good night. Gwen said nothing more as she escaped into the darkness of the apartment-house stairs.

When Dick came in to breakfast the next morning, he found Gwen in her kimono again, eager to tell him of the opera. She had decided that the simple truth would be her wisest course, but she saw his face darken as the recital went on, and altered it judiciously.

"Changed the seats, did he?"

"Well, yes. He knew a man at the door; he said he was in case once that this man brought about election returns or something. So he took your seats and sold them, and Van got others."

"Downstairs?"

"Oh yes. And Dick, it was wonderful! I never dreamed..." She was off with a good start upon the musical element of the evening now, but when he spoke it was still of Van.

"How'd he happen to be there?"

"He loves music. He plays the piano marvelously, you know."

They idled at the table. The streets were quiet in the early morning. Now and then church bells rang. Gwen asked Dick if he had had a hard night.

"No, it was darned interesting!" He told them about it. Afterward Gwen helped in the kitchen, got herself completely dressed, came out to the living-room to find Dick deep in the morning papers.

"Now what?" she asked. "Must you go to the hospital this morning?"

"You haven't got a date?" he asked. For a moment Gwen was bewildered, then she laughed, suddenly understanding his mood.

"I've been wondering what was the matter with you! No, I haven't got a date. What shall we do? Where could we go and make a fire and cook hamburgers? Your mother got some for our lunch."

She saw his face brighten in spite of himself.

"Oh, let's see," Dick murmured, warming, letting the newspaper drop to the floor beside his chair. "I know what we could do—if I can get Ollie Briggs on the telephone—" he said. "Wait a minute!"

Ollie Briggs and his wife, it appeared, were going down to spend Sunday at Halfmoon Bay, fishing with friends. Ollie had offered Dick the trip sure they could include Dick and Miss Washburn in the fishing trip. However, there were beautiful beaches all about Princeton, and just behind them were woods and hills. Dick, suddenly all enthusiasm, telephoned Ollie, who promised to stop for Dick and Gwen.

Gwen flew for the hamburgers, added a saucepan and some rolls, pepper, salt, matches, coffee and coffee-pot. They laughed joyously as they raced through preparations, and were down on the foggy sidewalk in good time. Dr. Briggs, with a doe-eyed young wife, presently drove up. Gwen and Dick got into the back seat; in laughter and high spirits the party started on its way.

The Briggs left them at a long wide arc of sand, and Gwen and Dick rumped along it contentedly, looking for a place where they might hope to be alone, later on, when the Sunday picnicers arrived. They presently found a cranny in a cliff, with a strip of washed beach set between encroaching rocks.

Gwen busied herself with luncheon preparations, steadying her coffee-pot on a rock, opening packages from the delicacy shop, scraping sand smooth to hold the cups.

"Gwen," Dick said, "doesn't your mother mind our having days alone this way?"

"No," Gwen answered sedately. "She knows we like each other, of course, and that we have a good deal to talk over. It's time to light that fire, Dick," she added, in a matter-of-fact tone.

"Mother's very practical," finished Gwen. "She knows we're serious."

Kneeling on one knee, he slowly shook out the lighted match before it had touched the fire. She saw the look in his face change, his eyes soften. He got to his feet, and they stood facing each other.

"Do you mean what you said, Gwen?" Dick asked, his big hands on her shoulders. She looked her hands about his neck, trying to laugh.

"Do—do you want me to?"

"Do I want you to?"

"You never said so." The wind was blowing her dark curls, her slender young body straight into his arms; their cheeks were together.

"Because I—because I—oh, darling!" Dick whispered. And for a moment the whole world, to Gwen, was only a man's kiss. When she emerged breathless from his embrace, and could hold him at arm's length, she was laughing triumphantly.

"You knew it all the time, since that first Sunday!" she reproached him. "The Sunday we went to the Arctic!"

"Know it? I never dared dream it! I didn't—But, Gwen," he interrupted himself, his mood chilled. "I can't go to Scotland now!"

"Ah yes, you can. That's just it. You must. All the more."

"But we can't wait four years! We can't wait one."

terday I was worrying because I couldn't get you better seats for the opera, and take you in a taxi. Engaged, hey? What do you know about that?"

"It's a mere detail," she said. "But you haven't said yet that you love me. I brought this subject up, remember."

"Oh, lord, do I love you! Wait until we've been married 20 years and I'll tell you I love you!"

"You never would have asked me, I suppose?"

"I didn't dare! I've been going around for weeks—months—wondering how I could. I couldn't even give you the right kind of engagement ring. I can't now. But by George—"

"Dick, darling, don't worry about a ring. Worry about having enough warm clothes for Scotland. Worry about getting there. Will it cost you a lot?"

"No, they send me fifty pounds. I can do it swell on that. I'll go tourist, or third, I don't care! Gwen, I don't care about anything now, so long as you'll wait for me. And you'll be proud of me, you'll see! I'll work! And I'll save, too. I'll save—"

"I'm proud of you now. Why, Dick," Gwen said, "poor or rich, successful or failure, you're just my fate. I'll cook for you in two little rooms in the Mission, or I'll be the wife of the great spine specialist, I don't care!"

"I adore you!" Dick said in a low tone. Another voice had said that in her hearing, and not so long before, but it had not reached her as this voice did. No other woman in the world had ever heard Dick Latimer say that. Seated with her back braced against the smooth shoulder of a rock, Gwen put out her hand, and he flung himself down beside her and caught the hand to his lips. "I adore you!" he said again, under his breath. "To wait for you for years, Gwen. It seems more than I can do! I want you so, my beautiful wife!"

"It won't be so long. We'll both be so busy. And before you know it, it'll be 'next year,' and 'this year,' and then I'll be getting my clothes together!"

"I know. I know. I've not got much to offer you even with this Edinburgh thing. Gwen, but without it I'd have nothing. I've got to take it."

"And this isn't like a 'crash,' Dick, just another 'case.' With us it's marriage—it's a life job."

"It'll be heaven!" he said gruffly, as she paused, in a voice almost ashamed of its own emotion.

"Those three years will be nothing. We'll still be young. The glory—the glory, Dick," Gwen said, "is that we've found each other. In spite of my being buried in Kenthill, and you being a slave to those clinics, we've actually found each other."

"Was any one else in the world as happy as this, ever?" Dick said, as they ate their luncheon. "And only yesterday," he added, "I was wondering if you were going to marry that—that sap!"

"Van? Oh, Dick, no! He's—he must be nearly forty, to begin with."

"What happened to his first wife?"

"She died in an auto crash. She was a Kenthill girl, you know. He has a little girl who lives with her mother now. No, he's really nice," Gwen said judiciously, on a great bite of hamburger and toasted bun, "but I wouldn't marry him. Not ever."

"He's in love with you, though."

"It sort of surprises me," Gwen said ingenuously. "I don't know how he got that way. He's so violent about it. Well," she presently added, "when he knows we're engaged that'll end that."

"Engaged, ha!" Dick exulted, sprawled in the bland winter sunshine with his dark head resting on the surface of a rock. "We'll always remember this Sunday, won't we, Gwen?"

"Remember it! It starts our new life, Dick. It's the beginning of all our planning, our moving from this house to that house, our worries together and our fun together."

"Gwen, if it didn't have to be so long before we begin!" He stretched out his hand, and Gwen put her own hand into it. "But you're so—so darned wonderful, that you make me ashamed," he said. "We'll both be busy, you know, and I'll be learning—if there's anything that gets away from me in these three years I don't know what it'll be!"

"I don't think it'll be three years. I think I'll come to Edinburgh and we'll be married there in less than two."

"I'll bet on it," he said. He took a paper and pen from his pocket, and they entered upon definite calculations. Rent, so much. Food, certainly not more than so much. Clothes—clothes lasted a long time. And for a while they were alone in a little haven of their own.

At three o'clock they walked in the breeze, sandy, blinking, weary, but there was no fatigue in their bright eyes as they talked all the long way into town, and Gwen, with Dick's arm for the first time tight about her, felt as if she could never be tired or discouraged or doubtful again. There was a deep restfulness in the security of loving and being loved; she could not drink deep enough of it.

FIERCE FIGHTING CLAIMED BY NAZIS

spite earlier reports the Germans had captured it. The Norwegian flag still was said to be flying from the Haløen fortress.

Further north sharp street fighting was reported at Sarpsborg, about 20 miles away, where Norwegian Nazis were reported numerous.

The town of Kongsvinger, 50 miles northeast of Oslo near the Swedish frontier, still was held by the Norwegians, although all civilians had left in anticipation of German attack. The newspaper Lena Tidningen at Osterund, in central Sweden opposite the important Norwegian port of Trondheim, which the Germans hold, said today that a telephoned dispatch from Stjordal, 15 miles east of Trondheim, disclosed that 26 German bombing planes were stationed there. In addition, 22 more were reported on their way there.

This newspaper also brought to light a story which may solve the mystery of how the Germans on Tuesday were able to pass so easily by the fortress Agdenes which guards the outer entrance to the narrow Trondheim fjord.

This report was that the fortress had stopped the German fleet and was holding them off until received an order from Major Vikdun Quisling, head of the Norwegian Nazi party, ostensibly issued in the name of the Norwegian government and ordering the defenders not to resist.

Later, according to this story, contradictory order came from the regular government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold, but it was too late. The German ships were inside the fortress.

The Lena Tidningen said that all children and old people had been evacuated from Trondheim, a rail point of great strategic value which the allies may try to take from the Germans.

The Stockholm radio tonight broadcast a report that several large British warships were landing troops at Narvik under heavy bombardment from German warplanes and land forces.

A former premier and foreign minister to Norway, Johan Ludwig Mowinkel, said in an interview here that the situation in Norway was brighter.

Major Quisling, who proclaimed a group of his followers the new "government" of all Norway last Tuesday, is in charge of only a limited district around Oslo which has been occupied by the Germans, said Mowinkel.

Major Quisling is in control of the Oslo radio stations and newspapers, Mowinkel said, and thus has the best means of reaching the people.

If enough Americans desire to leave the country, consulate officials said, a special train probably would be arranged to speed them through Germany to Genoa.

Americans were warned against attempting to travel on belligerent ships.

AMSTERDAM, April 13.—(P)—Netherlands radio programs were interrupted tonight for a special broadcast of a British denial of rumors that English troop transports are on the way to Holland.

The communique said the report had been carried by the German radio and published in the Berlin newspaper Nachtausgabe.

LONDON, April 13.—(P)—Clement R. Attlee, leader of the labor opposition in parliament, said in a broadcast today "it is probable that before long our soldiers and our people at home will have to face the full fury of a Nazi attack."

He based his prediction on the belief that the Norwegian campaign "may well be the prelude to attacks of the utmost violence by land and sea and air."

Congress Adjournment May Kill Anti-Lynching Bill

Southern Senators May Be Spared Talking The Act To Death

By Ben Grant

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(P)—The adjournment rush might spare the south's senators from the ordeal of talking this year's anti-lynching bill to death.

Bills which fail to get action at this session do not hold over until next year, but die with adjournment. In 1941, the progress already made by the anti-lynching bill would be erased, and the measure would have to travel the whole tedious legislative route again.

Present goal of the administration is to adjourn early in June. The leadership is taking no chances on letting that plan be fouled by an anti-lynching filibuster.

Some legislators said the strategy apparently was to keep the senate so busy with other legislation—that qualifying for the "must" list—that there never would be a lull for the lynch bill's friends to use in calling it up for consideration.

Southern senators, who dislike to filibuster, were hopeful the bill would die a quiet death. But they missed no bet.

The other day, Chairman Glass, Democrat, Virginia, of the senate appropriations committee, proposed an amendment to senate rules to require that all speeches in any appropriation debate be confined to the bill under consideration.

Senator Connolly, Democrat, Texas, leader of anti-lynching foes, quickly objected, insisting on full and free discussion of all questions before the senate.

He did not say so, but some believed Connolly looked forward to a time when the anti-lynch bill might be stopped by a prolonged debate on the measure immediately preceding it on the senate's legislative schedule. If that happened to be an appropriation bill, Glass' plan would preclude such strategy.

The Glass motion was not adopted. Southerners also guarded against the lynch measure's being hung onto the end of some other bill as a rider. In fact, they kept the debate against the Hatch "pernicious politics" bill going until they received assurances the anti-lynching bill would not be coupled with it.

Chances for an expansion of the south's sugar industry appeared slim this week-end.

to the seven-cent gasoline tax, four cents of which is dedicated to the highways.

"Amendment No. 4," the governor said, "is to guarantee that all severance taxes collected would be used for school purposes. This was promised by every candidate for governor as well as by myself. This amendment if passed will forever estop any imposition on this revenue in any way whatsoever, except for school purposes."

Referring to amendment No. 2, which would permit the Orleans levee board to donate a site for a United States coast guard station on Lake Pontchartrain, the governor said: "I do not think any one is against this."

With Denmark under German control and the campaign in Norway proceeding, Sweden was seen by Germans to be veering from what was interpreted here as hostile neutrality toward Germany to benevolent neutrality.

The Swedish government, according to information received in the Wilhelmstrasse, appeared to have given assurances that the press and radio no longer would depend upon news alleged to be of British and French origin and hence hostile to Germany.

Informed sources asserted there was a practical economic side to the question of Sweden's neutrality.

When the port of Lulea, at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, becomes ice-free next month, it was considered likely that Germany would try to have iron ore from northern Sweden shipped from there rather than along the Norwegian coast, regardless of how strongly German forces may have become entrenched along the latter.

Beyond that, neutral military experts in the German capital said they felt Sweden, by yet by the force of circumstances, be drawn into Ger-to Trondheim to strengthen the captured Norwegian coast defenses.

5. German penetration of the Norwegian interior continued relentlessly and in the far north their troops took over the Narvik railway which brings Swedish ore to the Arctic.

6. British air attacks were ineffective, raiders losing 12 planes yesterday while the Germans were losing five. (The British admitted the loss of 11 aircraft in attacks Friday and Saturday on German-held bases in Norway but claimed a munitions warehouse was blown up in Bergen, a hangar badly damaged at Stavanger and warships and supply ships bombed and machine-gunned.)

Germans were almost scornful of British reports that the Skagerrak, the Kattegat and the North sea were being mined to bottle up German shipping and naval vessels.

"The British navy cannot lay mines in spots which its ships cannot reach," they said.

PUBLIC PROTESTS ON AMENDMENTS

sales tax, and to keep the tax on the statute books of the state. Had the state machine won, its forces would have united to defeat the amendment next Tuesday. Later, when urged to repeal the tax by legislative act, machine leaders would have responded that the people had already spoken and their voice was in favor of the tax. This sales tax has been one of the most prolific and dependable sources of deadweight and waste within reach of the machine. The cost of administering it has been prodigious.

Amendment No. 2 is considered to be, in a sense, non-political. But it is condemned by the fact that it adds to the power of the Orleans levee board, a body which has been the source of many political scandals. The amendment proposes to transfer to the United States for coast guard purposes a tract of land along Lake Pontchartrain. But, the limits of the proposed grant are not described in the amendment. On the contrary, that enactment says "the location and size of the tract is to be determined by the said board." It is generally felt that the Jones legislature should redraft and resubmit this amendment at a time when there is a levee board which has the full confidence of the people.

The chief objection urged to the amendment exempting gasoline watercraft, aircraft and farm equipment from payment of gasoline taxes, is that it contravenes the federal constitution by weakening the collateral behind highway bonds. When these bonds were issued and sold all of the gasoline taxes were dedicated to the payment of interest and bond redemption. It is claimed now that this collateral cannot be constitutionally changed. Besides, while it is well known that the amendment was passed to get the votes of south Louisiana fishermen who use gasoline boats, (a political stroke that failed), the amendment does not confine the proposed exemption to gasoline boats used in trade or commerce, but includes pleasure craft as well.

The purpose of Amendment No. 4 would appear to be patriotic, but it was a carelessly executed political expedient. As drawn and passed the amendment dedicated all severance taxes to the use of the public schools, the obvious purpose being to garner the votes of school teachers and officials. However, the same "rubber stamp legislature" that passed this amendment had previously raised the severance tax for machine purposes, giving a large chunk of it to the conservation commission and another huge slice to owners of private land near Chalmette.

As passed, Amendment No. 4 contained no provision for collection of the tax, since it set aside no funds to cover collection costs. An illustration of how hastily the amendment was drawn is afforded by the language of Paragraph 2, which says that part of the tax shall be used "to furnish library books, pencils and ink, writing paper, pencils, pens and ink," etc. The enrolling room and the legislative bureau were certainly sleeping when this amendment was passed.

It is generally felt that none of the four amendments have the slightest chance of passage on next Tuesday. The disposition of anti-administration lawyers who have given the matter some study is to reduce rather than increase the size of the Louisiana state constitution. Although less than twenty years of age, the constitution today is twice the size it was when it was passed during the administration of Governor John M. Parker, in 1921.

The original constitution comprised 127 printed pages, of which the schedule embraced 3, making the 1921 instrument just 124 pages in length. The Louisiana constitution reprinted in 1938 comprised 246 pages, of which 3 were devoted to the schedule. Each of the pages of the 1938 edition was longer by five lines than those of the 1921 edition. If the page measurement of the 1921 constitution had been maintained in the 1938 edition, the latter would have contained 273 pages.

All but 25 of the additional pages have been added since Huey P. Long was elected governor, in 1928. If these 25 pages are deducted from the 273 total, it will be seen that 248 pages remain. Therefore, what is known as the Maestri-Long-Leche regime in Louisiana doubled the size of the Louisiana constitution—mainly for political reasons.

The Louisiana constitution is such a hodge-podge and contains so many political provisions which should be eliminated in the interest of good government, a movement is brewing for a constitutional convention to re-

CATTLE INDUSTRY COMES TO STATE

Louisiana Takes Big Strides In Recent Years To Improve Stock

NEW ORLEANS, April 13.—(AP)—The woolly west, moving into Louisiana, already deep in old world superstitions, has given the state some new bugaboos.

Within five years Louisiana, overcoming a scourge that made its cattle a sorry blight on the market, has imported fabulous bulls with the blood of champions.

The cattle industry is now worth at least $40,000,000, while 2,000,000 cattle graze on land which the rest of the world probably thought was exclusively devoted to cotton, vegetables, or just wind and weather.

The tick was so bad here in 1929 that the federal government and tick-free states imposed a rigid quarantine against the 42 infested parishes of the state's 64.

But five years ago the tick which made Louisiana cattle a step-child in the rest of the country was eradicated. Since then 8,300 registered bulls have been brought into the state to improve the Louisiana breed.

With a $1,000,000 packing plant (Swift and company) at Lake Charles, that city held the first southwest Louisiana fat stock show.

Rodeos followed. Bronco riders, bulldoggers, calf ropers, wild Brahma bull riders, they all have their pet superstition, some in common, some exclusively a man's own.

These were some of the ideas they have brought into Louisiana:

No rodeo cowboy, whether he rides broncos or rope calves, could dare eat peanuts in front of the chutes.

Whistling is worse. It's a safe occupation in the bathroom—but not when the wild Brahma bulls come out.

A yellow shirt or a new rein on a bucking horse comes under bad luck. A trick rider, however, may wear orange that is definitely orange.

When a bronco rider must buy a new rein, he hands it over to some non-superstitious ranch hand to be broken in like a new pair of shoes.

The same sentiment develops for a lucky shirt, a trampy-looking hat, or a pair of chaps.

Bronco riders wear the same shirt each time he's up for a trip, whether it's a four-way show or one that runs for weeks. The only likelihood of a change is when he bucks off.

BACHELOR GIRLS OF 1909, ALL MARRIED, MEET AGAIN

Noted at Louisiana Tech in 1909 was the Bachelor Girls' club composed of eight coeds. Recently all but two of the group held a reunion in Shreveport. One died after graduation and one lived too far away to attend the gathering. All of the girls "broke their vows" and married after they finished college. In the reunion scene, pictured above from left to right, are: Mrs. J. The same girls as "bachelors" 31 years ago at Tech are shown in the lower photo, left to right, standing: Gladys Herbert, Jo Eddie Jackson, Mary Wood, now Mrs. Swanson Pinkard of La Grange, Ga., and Lonam Johnson. Seated: Hettie Tucker (deceased), Minnie Tignor, Maggie Childress and Ruth Davis.

NEW V. F. W. POST NOW AT FERRIDAY

Louisiana Leads All Departments Of Nations In New Posts

A post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was organized Friday night in Ferriday with a prospective charter list of thirty-five overseas veterans to start the organization.

R. L. Green was elected temporary commander, C. E. Osterburg elected senior commander, J. C. Antolin, junior commander, Alex Ours, quartermaster, and D. R. Porter elected officer of the day.

The next meeting was scheduled for April 25. L. F. Fish of Lake Charles, C. W. Wilson of Alexandria and C. A. Hunt of Monroe all department officers, were in charge of the organization.

The addition of the Ferriday post keeps the department out in front as Louisiana is leading the entire country in new posts organized since the department encampment held in Monroe last June, with thirteen new units since that time. The Veterans of Foreign Wars state service commission in operation since August 1, 1938, has secured through pension and compensation, and increased compensation and pensions, back pay, bonuses, travel pay to disabled veterans, more than $126,000 on the appropriation given the organization by the legislature in session in 1938 which was $10,000 per year.

This is one bureau that has not operated in the red more than 300 overseas veterans met before members of the organization are added to the department membership in these new posts organized this administration. C. A. Hunt is the service commander and chief of staff for the department.

MONROE MOTOR CO.

310 WALNUT ST.

SOX TAKE FIRST OF SERIES FROM BUCKS, 12-6

SOX PROSPECTS

Before getting out on the well-known limb and predicting where the Monroe White Sox will or will not finish in the league standings for the coming season, it would be wise to consider, for the time being at least, the problems that face Manager "Poco" Taitt at the present.

It is the decisions that he will be forced to make in the next two or three weeks that will determine, to a great extent, just how the Sox will fare in the matter of games won and lost. And if anybody doesn't think the skipper has his problems, just try to figure them out for him. It is a problem for the manager and it is no easy one. If he guesses correctly all will be well and good; but if the team does not function in winning proportions, he will have the wrath of a few baseball bugs to contend with.

First of all, Taitt has, at the present time, nine class men and the league rule limits the number of class men to seven. Therefore, two class men must go by cutting-down time, which is 20 days after the season opens. Should he protect his pitching staff by carrying as many seasoned campaigners as possible and let the youngsters play the infield and outfield or vice versa? Are any of the youngsters showing up well enough to replace any of the outfield or infield veterans? Can Robert Burt, the Ruston flash, force Bob Hill to the bench? Is there an infielder in the Sox camp that can push Frank Hackney out of the lineup?

Mr. Taitt, here is where you earn your money! You have been worth every cent you've received since coming to Monroe that fateful day in June, 1938, and we still believe you are capable of solving the problems that face you as well as we believe that you are capable of solving our own individual troubles. Maybe the thing will work itself out.

Twenty days after the season opens is a long time off. If, for some reason, your decision does not work out for the winning ways of the Sox, it still can be remedied. You remedied one team after the first of June and you remedied one last season in time to finish 16 1/2 games in front of the pack. So, in the words of Scarlett O'Hara, we will not worry about that today, it might run us crazy.

THE OTHER CLUBS

How about the other teams in the league? We have very little information on what the other teams think they will have for the coming season. So far no one has wired us that they expect to win a pennant. They seem to be going about their business in a very quiet way.

Greenville looks like they will be able to take care of themselves. Andy Rice, the former Memphis Chick who is in charge of things at Greenville, has been in the business quite a while and knows what it is all about. Everyone who knows anything about Guy Sturdy says you can depend upon him having a good club. We know that he is a scrapping manager, because Guy let his temper get out of control a couple of years ago and was suspended by Judge Bramham for 90 playing days. Cecil Coombs, the former business manager of the Fort Worth club, is managing the Hot Springs Bathers and he has plenty of contacts and probably will be heard from. Bud Clancy, the former big league first baseman, will direct the destinies of the Helena Seaporters and will probably get help from the Cincinnati Reds. Red Rollins, a smart manager and a good infielder will pilot the Pine Bluff Grays. Cowboy Jones will be back at Clarksdale and the Cowboy's record in this league is plenty good. That brings us down to Greenville, last year's champions. L. B. Jones will attempt to manage whatever George Brannon of the Jackson Senators sent to him. And Larry Gilbert told us last year that George Brannon could be more ball players than any one else he knew of could buy.

The league should be faster this year, not only because of the fact that it is studied with better managers but because it has repealed the "simon pures" rule. This year the clubs will have no previous professional experience. The clubs whose "simon pures" came through last year were well up in the percentage column when the season was over. Monroe has its Murrell Jones and Lefty Hinton, Hot Springs had the Zachar and Carter and Clarksdale had Lee and Gilbert. Seven men with unlimited experience as allowed in the Cotton States league makes it much faster than most class C leagues.

See you at the game!

L. S. U. TRACKMEN BEAT RICE, TEXAS

Mile Relay Victory Clinches Close Win For Louisiana State

BATON ROUGE, La., April 13.—(AP)—Despite a chill wind four records toppled today as Louisiana State conquered Rice and Texas in a triangular track and field meet that saw some of the south and southwest's finest cinder stars in action.

L. S. U.'s Bengals scored 60 1/2 points to 57 1/2 for Texas and 49 for Rice whose captain, brilliant Freddie Wolcott, won four first places in dashes and hurdles.

The meet's finest performance probably was turned in by J. C. Devall, angular L. S. U. sophomore who leaped 6 feet 6 1/2 inches in setting a new meet record for the high jump.

Most thrilling was the mile relay which clinched the close meet although Texas protested one of its runners had been fouled by an L. S. U. competitor. Wolcott sped to victory in the 100 and 220-yard sprints and annexed both low and high hurdles without extending himself.

Hughes of Texas vastly improved the meet's record for the discuss and L. S. U.'s Church bettered his own mark for the half-mile. Adair of Texas placed a new javelin distance in the meet record book.

Summary:
440-yard dash: Won by Hall, Rice; second, Erwin, L. S. U.; third, Workman, L. S. U.; fourth, Sparks, Texas. Time: 1:47.2 seconds.

100-yard dash: Won by Wolcott, Rice; second, Ramsdell, Texas; third, Brown, L. S. U.; fourth, Blagg, Rice. Time: 9.9 seconds.

Mile run: Won by McRae, L. S. U.; second, Hafnick, Texas; third, Stinson, L. S. U.; fourth, Price, Texas. Time: 4:27.8.

220-yard dash: Won by Ramsdell, Texas; second, Roberts, Texas; third, Burge, L. S. U.; fourth, Jumboville, L. S. U. Time: 2:22.3 seconds.

High hurdles: Won by Wolcott, Rice; second, Gatewood, Texas; third, Lagunes, L. S. U.; fourth, Baggett, Texas. Time: 1:44.2 seconds.

Half mile: Won by Church, L. S. U.; second, Taylor, Rice; third, Bunzell, L. S. U.; fourth, McSpadden, Texas. Time: 1:56.3 (meet record, old mark held by Church at 1:56.9).

Quarter-mile relay: Won by Rice, (Hall, Jones, Blagg, Wolcott); L. S. U. and Texas both disqualified.

Two miles: Won by Hafnick, Texas; second, McRae, L. S. U.; third, Price, Texas; fourth, Lostak, Texas. Time: 10:08.2.

Low hurdles: Won by Wolcott, Rice; second, Gatewood, Texas; third, Lagunes, L. S. U.; fourth, Jaques, Texas. Time: 24 seconds flat.

Mile relay: Won by L. S. U. (Burge, Workman, Erwin, Church); second, Rice; third, Texas.

Field events:
High jump: Won by Devall, L. S. U.; 6 feet 6 1/2 inches; Brown of L. S. U.; Barnes of Texas and Baggett of Texas all tied for second at 6 feet. (Meet record, old mark 6 feet 6 1/2 inches).

Shot put: Won by Deal, Rice. 46 feet, 7 1/2 inches; second, Glasie, Rice. 45 feet, 1 1/2 inches; third, Hartman, Rice. 44 feet, 7 inches; fourth, Garrett, Texas. 44 feet, 1 1/2 inches.

No licenses are required for one-pole fishermen, unless they are from out of the state. Non-residents are required to pay a $2 fee despite their methods of fishing.

A summary of the provisions governing fishing was given by Mr. Brown as follows:

Non-residents' angler's license, $2.00

As regards methods of fishing, these can be taken only by means of rod, hook and line, trolling line, hand line, bait casting or fly casting apparatus.

PLAY DAY SATED AT COLLEGE HERE

Annual Event Expected To Attract Many High Schools Of Section

The fourth annual play day for high school girls, sponsored by the Women's Athletic association of Northeast Junior college, is scheduled to take place Saturday, April 20.

Play day, carrying out the theme, "play for play's sake," is one that is always anticipated with great enthusiasm as a day in which the various high school groups meet to play with, rather than against, each other. Each girl is registered and assigned to one of six color groups which act as teams throughout the program, with each team meeting four of the six groups during the activities of the day.

The purpose of play day is to promote a program of physical activities for all students rather than a chosen few. It is to stress enjoyment of the sport, to offer every girl the opportunity to play with other schools without going through an extensive training period, and to teach new games which might be included in the high school physical education program. Play day gives the small school the opportunity to participate on equal grounds with the larger schools of the state. All high schools, regardless of their enrollment, are invited.

In the past it has been customary to limit the number of participants from each school to ten, but because many schools have asked the privilege of sending more than ten students, this year the number is unlimited. Each school is to include among its participants a candidate for health queen, who is to be judged on posture and general appearance as to cleanliness, wholesomeness, and vitality.

The day's program will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will include tennis, ping pong, softball, box hockey, horseshoes, badminton, shuffleboard, riflery, archery, and volleyball. There will be folk dancing and a challenge program as well as the choosing of the health queen and the program in her honor. Last, but not least, there will be a tea in the social building with members of the Women's Athletic association as hostesses.

All activities will be conducted on the campus and in the college gym, with members of the W. A. A. acting as officials under the careful guidance of Miss Ada Bess Hart, women's physical education director.

QUALIFYING ROUND AT M'GUIRE ENDS

Today Last Day To Post Score; Match Play To Start Monday

The qualifying round for the club championship at McGuire Park Golf club will end today, and the first round match play will start Monday, it was announced last night by Jim McKenzie, club pro.

One week will be allowed for the playing of each round of matches, McKenzie said. Pairings for the first round of the championship play will be made tonight after all players have qualified.

E. S. "Shep" Girault, the defending champion, remains the low scorer in the battle for medalist honors. Last week Girault shot a 72.

The scores of those who qualified yesterday are as follows:

"Doc" Bennett, 92; J. C. Limer, 95; T. Hinton, 111; Joe Washburn, 105; R. D. Kellogg, 92; Ford Hines, 90; H. A. McDonald, 95; Ben Beasley, 84; S. M. McReynolds, 99, and Herb Steed 95. Increased interest in the tournament has been shown by club members this year and a large field is expected to enter the championship matches.

The course, one of the sportiest in the south, has been placed in perfect shape by Pro McKenzie, and some excellent scores are expected to result.

OWENS AND NEGRO CLUBS COMING HERE

Major league baseball, plus Jesse Owens, Olympic champion, and an exhibition of running and hurdling will be on display at Casino park next Thursday, starting at 8 o'clock.

The Kansas City Monarchs and Oscar Charleston's Original Crawfords, formerly of Pittsburgh, leading contenders for the negro American Baseball league title, will clash on the diamond and if last year's sensational series between these two mighty clubs can be taken as a criterion, then local fans can expect big league ball from the cry "play ball."

Word from the Crawfords' training camp in Tampa, Fla., is to the effect that Charleston's boys loom as potential champions. In addition to the best of last year's regulars, a number of rookies have definitely made the club. Heading the list of first year men is "Steel Arm" Bell, a catcher who can hit and throw. Zeke Keyes, fast right-hand pitcher, John Smith, hard-hitting outfielder, and Jim Wilson, second baseman, are other newcomers. Bud Clarkson, leading home run hitter of the American league, is back at short, and in the first five exhibition games of which the Craws won three, hit four round trippers.

Curt Henderson Oscar Charleston, Poe Carter, Jimmy Johnson, 18-year-old pitcher, and John Wright, are other veterans with the Crawfords.

Infants' clothing on the unrestricted list in Germany since war's outbreak has been placed on the ration card system. Extra yarn allotments are procurable to encourage knitting baby clothes.

MONROE GARNERS 17 HITS OFF THREE VISITING HURLERS

Locals Take Early Lead For Easy Victory; Second Game Today

Combining 17 base hits with costly errors, the Monroe White Sox chalked up their second exhibition win of the season yesterday afternoon by defeating the Greenville Buckshots by a score of 12 to 6.

The Sox started scoring early, picking up a pair of runs in the second inning on hits by Manager Doug Taitt, Larry Fisher and Jim Brister. After obtaining this two-run lead, the White Sox were never behind and continued to add to their lead. After scoring a lone marker in the fourth inning, the Sox practically put the game on ice by stalling a four-run spurge in the fifth stanza that sent Pitcher Fred Green to the showers. The Sox scored their one run in the fourth inning on a two-base hit by Frank Hackney and a single by Catcher Bobby Schang. A base on balls and doubles by Hackney and Schang and a single by Pitcher Floyd Speer gave the locals their four runs in the fifth inning.

Jim Brister, the newly acquired right-hander, showed up well while on the mound for the White Sox. Brister worked four innings and gave up five hits and one run, but then he weakened in the fifth inning and walked the first two batters to face him and Manager Taitt waved Floyd Speer to the mound, the two runners who had walked later scoring.

Speer held the Bucks pretty well in hand despite the fact that he was having trouble getting the ball over the plate. A single by Pitcher Clinger and a four-bagger by Pinch-hitter Andy Reese gave the Bucks two runs in the seventh frame.

The Buckshots added their final run in the eighth inning on a single by anager Andy Reese, an infield out and an error by Joe Eagar, Monroe's shortstop. Monroe's tally came in the eighth on walks to Frank Hackney and Verner Riba and singles by Bobby Schang and Robert Burt.

The White Sox hitting showed a decided improvement over past performances. Robert Burt, Dale Englehorn, Frank Hackney and Catcher Schang showing the most power. Burt made four hits, two of them being line drives to left field and the other two taps to the infield that the speed merchant beat out. Englehorn came through with two doubles, as did Frank Hackney. As a matter of fact, the Bucks could not get Frank out, as he was on base five times in as many trips to the plate. He was walked twice and got on an error once in addition to his pair of doubles. Bobby Schang found men on base each time he appeared at the plate and was credited with driving in five of the 12 Monroe runs.

The White Sox showed up well in the field. Robert Burt made a couple

YANKS SELECTED TO WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT

ONLY EXPERTS BELIEVE CHAMPS WILL NOT REPEAT

Red Sox, Indians And White Sox Receive Votes Of Confidence

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—The New York Yankees are a cinch to win their fifth straight American league pennant in the opinion of a majority of the experts but there are still a few die-hard who foresee the breaking up of Joe McCarthy's powerful machine.

The 17 baseball writers participating in the Associated Press annual poll followed last year's order of finish pretty much in making their 1940 predictions. Sixty-six of them placed the Yankees in the No. 1 slot. Nine selected the Boston Red Sox as the new league champions while the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox each received the confidence of one writer.

Receiving no votes for below second and on the basis of eight points for first place, seven for second, etc., the Yanks piled up a total of 605 points. The Red Sox were just as firmly entrenched in second place with 536 points, the majority of which were garnered from the 57 runner-up votes.

The Indians, polling votes for the first five places, received 438 points, placing them in third place—just where they finished last fall. Then came the only transposition in the order of 1939's final standings—the placing of Detroit over Chicago. But the margin between the two teams was small—359 to 346.

Washington, Philadelphia and St. Louis took over the last three positions without much competition. The Senators polled votes for each of the last five places but generally were selected for sixth. The Athletics, with the experts apparently believing they can't be as bad as the Browns, moved into seventh, a promotion from the cellar in last year's selections.

Only one writer dared to select the Browns for as high as sixth. Eleven placed them seventh and the remainder saw no hopes for better than eighth.

Results of the poll, including the number of votes for each team for each place and the total points figured on an 8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1939 Finish	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Pts.

SHAW LARGEST MONEY WINNER

Entrant In Indianapolis Race Has Coined $71,300 In Prizes

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13.—(AP)—Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, the "Dapper Dan" of automobile racing who won last year's 300-mile race here, has become the biggest money winner in the history of the event.

Officials dug back through their records today and figured out that Shaw had pocketed $71,300 in winnings on the Indianapolis speedway since he first raced on the track in 1927.

His $20,000 first prize money last year enabled him to pass Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Calif. in prize money and his standing at the head of the parade apparently is secure because Meyer, who won three races and $69,000, has announced his retirement from the speed game.

Shaw finished fourth in 1927, second in 1933, 1935 and 1938; seventh in 1936 and first in 1937 and 1939.

Meyer was first in 1928, 1933 and 1936; second in 1929, and fourth in 1930 and 1937.

If Meyer stands by his retirement pledge, Shaw will be the only driver in this year's race among the first 10 money winners.

Trailing Shaw and Meyer are Tommy Milton of Detroit, two-time winner, $49,600; Harry Hartz of Los Angeles, never a winner but second three times and fourth twice, $37,000; the late Jimmy Murphy of Los Angeles, 1922 winner, $32,500; Fred Frame of Los Angeles, 1932 victor, $33,000; Ralph De Palma of New York, winner in 1915, $31,400; the late Bill Cummings of Indianapolis, 1934 winner, $30,200; Rene Thomas of Paris, France, winner in 1914, $30,000, and Jules Goux of Paris, France, 1913 victor, $28,500.

Bert McDowell Of L. S. U. Wins Intercollegiate Golf

TIGER LINKSMAN NOSES MICHIGAN GOLF STAR, 1 UP

Bob Palmer Grabs Early Lead Only To See Louisianian Edge Him Out

ATHENS, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—Bert McDowell, sharpshooting Louisiana State veteran, quit the runner-up ranks today and won his first major golf triumph—the Southern Intercollegiate championship.

Nine times a second-placer, the 21-year-old Kansas City, Mo., senior fought an uphill battle to turn back Bob Palmer, slender Michigan captain, 1-up in the 18-hole final of the sixth annual Southern tournament. In winning the crown he joined two other former Louisiana links stars, Paul Leslie and Freddie Haas, as champions of the contest started in 1935.

Approximately 500 persons thronged over the Athens Country club course. Palmer grabbed an early lead on the third hole when McDowell drove into a trap and went one over par.

McDowell evened the match on the short fifth when he got down in a one-over par while Palmer missed a two-foot putt which would have tied the hole. On the ninth, however, McDowell went wild, belting his first drive into the lake and his second into the woods.

The Michigan captain took a conceded par four to go 1 up at the turn.

The 10th was split with birdie fouls, the 11th with pars, and the 12th with bogey fouls. Then McDowell knotted the match again on the 13th with a one-over five when Palmer boosted his approach into the creek and dropped far short on his recovery. He took a seven for the hole.

On the 16th, McDowell took a one-over par six while the Michigan captain visited two traps and slapped one into a bunker to take a nine. The 17th and 18th were halved at par. Earlier in the day Palmer bested Carey Middlecoff of Mississippi, 1-up, and McDowell whipped his team-mate, Earl Stewart, 6 and 5, in the semi-finals.

The cards:

Par out ..... 444 535 434-36
McDowell ..... 445 445 439-42
Palmer ..... 444 545 434-37
Par in ..... 543 444 535-37-36-73
McDowell ..... 444 545 635-40-42-82
Palmer ..... 444 745 935-45-37-82

McDowell's record as a runner-up included the Southern Intercollegiate, the National Intercollegiate, and the Southern conference, all in 1938; the Western Junior in 1937 and 1938, and second place in the Kansas City medal tourney in 1938.

AMERICAN LEAGUE LOOKS TO ROOKIES

Clubs Hope To Uncover Another Batch Of Outstanding Youngsters

By Will Harridge
President American League
CHICAGO, April 13.—(AP)—Enthusiastic over the splendid showing made in 1939 by such first-year men as Ted Williams, Charles Keller, Bernard McCosky, Joseph Gallagher, Lou Boudreau, James Tabor, Marius Russo and Atley Donald, American league club owners and managers are making a supreme effort this year to display an unusually large number of new players in the hope of uncovering other such outstanding stars.

American league rosters today include the names of 50 players who toiled in the minors in 1939. Many of them will be hailed as major league stars within two or three years, while some are expected to distinguish themselves in 1940. At least that is the expectation of the managers of the teams of which they are members.

Newcomers who will, no doubt, make rapid steps toward stardom on American league clubs, in addition to Boudreau, who joined Cleveland late in the 1939 season, include Shortstop Jim Pofahl and Pitcher Sid Hudson of Washington; Outfielder Walter Judnich and Bob Swift of St. Louis; Catcher Tom Turner, Infielder Bob Kennedy and Pitcher Vallie Eaves of Chicago; Outfielder Dom DiMaggio and Pitcher Maurice Harris of Boston; Pitcher Marvin Bruer of New York and Catcher Ed Parnowski of Detroit.

Much interest will be shown this year in the moves made by Detroit in shifting Henry Greenberg from first base to the outfield. Fans also will watch the result of the transfer of Buddy Lewis of Washington from third base to the outfield. Greenberg, during the training period, has demonstrated he can handle efficiently his new assignment, enabling the Tigers to take advantage of the hitting of Rudy York by placing him on first base.

With the schedule of seven night games in each of four American league cities, giving many fans who could not attend day games an opportunity to witness baseball under lights, and the possibility of stardom for so many new players, I believe the American league can look forward with much optimism to another banner year.

NEW ORLEANS CLUB DECIDES THE GATE NOT SO IMPORTANT

NEW ORLEANS, April 13.—(AP)—The new bosses of the New Orleans Pelicans let it be known today that they were no longer interested in opening day attendance records, and declared "we are determined to sell Southern association baseball to the New Orleans fans strictly on merit."

Business Manager Charles Huxh, announcing "no high pressure effort has been made to swell the Pelican opening day crowd" next Tuesday, advised the fans that "The Pelicans are again their ball club."

"It is certain," Huxh said, "that our attendance Tuesday will fall considerably below that of recent years, but it should be a true indication of the kind of support we shall receive during the year."

Two years ago New Orleans set an opening day attendance record for the league with 25,273 persons, and last year won the trophy again with 21,025. In both years city authorities "urged" employees and members of their families to attend.

But the total season's attendance last year was only 92,000—little more than four times the opening day crowd—and Bird owners are reported to have lost $40,000 on the campaign.

"We are making no promises that we will win the pennant," said Huxh. "The only promise that Manager Hal Anderson and myself will make is that the Pelicans will hustle from the first inning to the last of every ball game."

WAVE TRACKMEN DEFEAT OLE MISS

White And Hays Lead Tulane Thinclads To Easy 77-48 Triumph

NEW ORLEANS, April 13.—(AP)—Led by Millard White and Harry Hays who scored 15 points each, Tulane's track team outfooted, outjumped and outtossed the University of Mississippi 77 to 48 in a dual meet at Tulane stadium today.

The Rebels won only three first places—the pole vault, two miles and 480.

Times were fair considering the weather was chilly and the season is young.

Ole Miss had been training only a week, and the Greens haven't had time to develop their best form yet. But there was some spirited competition in several events.

White had little trouble winning the shot, discus and javelin. In the former two events it was one-two-three for Tulane, as Pete Golomb and Roman Bentz also placed behind the big football linemen. White hurled the shot 48 feet 8 inches, the discus 132 feet 6 inches and the javelin 176 feet 6 inches.

Hays ran a brisk century in 10.1 seconds, and copied the "210"—the distance being necessitated by campus construction which shortened the course ten yards—in 21.7. He came back to score in the low hurdles in 23 seconds.

"Bubber" Cunningham ran a nice quarter for the visitors, being clocked in 51.1, and tried to take the half also but lacked the spurt at the finish and was second to Charles Vosburgh, whom he beat in the 440.

"Red" Hamilton easily took the pole vault for Ole Miss. He cleared 12 feet 4 inches and later tied 12.9 but couldn't quite make it. His pole was too short.

The Rebels ran one-two in the two miles, with Joe Simpson and Aldridge Shaw proving too much for Taylor of Tulane.

Summaries:

One mile—Won by Lockett, Tulane; Simpson, Ole Miss, second (only finisher). Time 4 minutes, 55.3 seconds.

440-yard run—Won by Cunningham, Ole Miss; Vosburgh, Tulane, second.

RUPPENHALL AND CURTIS TO MEET

Kallio Promises Plenty Of Good Wrestling In Weekly Program

Promoter Gus Kallio promises wrestling fans of Monroe a real treat next Tuesday night at the local wrestling arena at 310 Walnut street when Duke Ruppenhall, of Milwaukee, Wis., meets Jack Curtis of Vicksburg, Miss., in the main event.

In the semi-final event Sailor Watkins, of Amarillo, Tex., will meet Allen Parker of Nashville, Tenn., in a two out of three fall, 45 minute time limit.

Curtis is well known and is a favorite to Monroe wrestling audiences. Ruppenhall has appeared in Monroe only once previously and is considered a very capable performer. Promoter Kallio said he was extremely fortunate in being able to book these two wrestlers and is sure that the fans will witness a real wrestling match. Both performers are regarded as clean, scientific wrestlers.

The main event between Curtis and Ruppenhall is a two out of three falls, with a 90 minute time limit.

"Not for Me," ... said Mr. Yates. "Hot or cold, appearances count in my business! Those crumpled, baggy summer suits would never do."

MAY 4 NAMED AS POPPY DAY HERE

American Legion Auxiliary To Conduct Memorial Service In Monroe

Poppy day will be observed in Monroe and throughout the nation on Saturday, May 4. Mrs. Ted Mahr, president of L. B. Faulk No. 3 of the American Legion auxiliary, announced Saturday. On that day all Americans will be asked to wear memorial poppies in tribute to the World War dead and to aid the living victims of the war.

The little red memorial flowers will be distributed here by women and girls of the L. B. Faulk unit, under the direction of Miss Mize Faulk, chairman of the Poppy day committee. All contributions received for the poppies will go to legion and auxiliary welfare work for the disabled veterans, their families and the families of the dead.

"We feel that Poppy day will have increased meaning to America this year," said Mrs. Mahr, "because renewed warfare in Europe has renewed the memory of those boys of ours who gave their lives for their country. It is for them that we put on the poppy each year, to show that we still remember and honor their sacrifices. It is the flower which grew where they fell and which now blooms on the coats of Americans who appreciate their service."

"Events of the past year have shown us clearly that to be secure the United States must have men ready and able to defend the country, willing to give their lives in its defense, if necessary. We can be thankful today that we had such men 22 years ago. From them we can draw inspiration for the patriotic service necessary to maintain our freedom and democracy against today's dangers. Wearing their flower over our hearts means that within us dwells their love of America still lives."

Finland Pushes Gigantic Task Of Reconstruction

Army Is Kept Mobilized And Exodus To Other Countries Barred

By Max Harelson
HELSINKI—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Imagine, if you can, some great catastrophe in which 600,000 of the best men in the United States were killed and another 2,000,000 wounded.

Try to picture 20,000,000 suddenly made homeless, 400,000 widows, about 1,000,000 orphans. Suppose five of the richest agricultural and industrial states had to be given up and imagine property damage of $1,600,000,000 in the remaining states.

These figures appear fantastic, but they are an index of what happened in this little country of 3,500,000 during the three and one-half months of war with Soviet Russia. They are Finnish losses multiplied by 40 to put them in ratio to the United States population.

In proportion to population Finland lost eight times as many men in the brief war with Russia as the United States lost during the entire World War. It is impossible to imagine the United States on the intense war footing in effect here during the war.

Ten per cent of the entire population was under arms and almost as many more were in auxiliary services such as civil defense. The cost of maintaining such a military organization was astronomical, to say nothing of the losses entailed by industrial paralysis.

Some idea of the cost of the war can be obtained from an official summary given to the Hoover relief committee by the government. The report said: "Five hundred and twenty-five thousand are homeless because of the territory ceded—about 10 per cent of Finland. The evacuees saved an insignificant part of their possessions. Sixty-four thousand bombs were dropped; 122 brick houses destroyed, 364 damaged; 1,460 wooden houses destroyed, 2,619 damaged; four churches burned down and five damaged."

It is estimated that 30,000 lost their homes because of bombardments and the loss is placed at two billion marks (about $40,000,000). Fifteen thousand of the highest working efficiency were killed and left an estimated 8,000 to 10,000 widows and 20,000 or 20,000 orphans.

The bare statement that Finland lost 10 per cent of her territory does not tell the full story, for the Karelian isthmus not only has rich agricultural regions and excellent forests but contains some of the most highly industrialized areas in the country. There are about 40,000 farms in the ceded area and about 10,000 houses in the Viipuri region alone. The latter are assessed at 2,000,000,000 Finnish marks (about $40,000,000).

One great blow to Finnish economy will be the loss of the lower part of the internal water transportation system. The Russians now have possession of the lower section of the Saima canal and the great export harbor of Viipuri, which was the second to Kotka in the export of cellulose. Another great loss was the beauty spots on the isthmus and northeast of Lake Ladoga which formerly attracted thousands of tourists.

So much for the cost of the war. What about the future of Finland and what are the problems she faces?

Finland is far from a beaten nation! No conquered state would dare to criticize her conqueror as Finnish leaders have criticized Russia, nor to declare openly the intention to strengthen her defenses against possible threats of the future.

The whole attitude both of the people and the government is one of confidence and determination.

In these words are stated briefly Finland's two great problems:

1. Reconstruction of her devastated areas and the care for the thousands of homeless.
2. Building strong defenses against future attack.

Both these problems are so large and require such enormous expenditures of money and man-power that Finland can hope for no relaxation in the heavy sacrifices which the nation has been making since the start of the war.

Indications are that there will be no immediate demobilization of the army, although many soldiers will be used in reconstruction work. Foreign volunteers are being kept in Finland for military and civil work. Aid also continues to arrive from abroad, especially from relief organizations such as the Hoover committee.

Reconstruction plans are still in the preliminary stage. The first task was the emergency job of evacuating the areas ceded to Russia and finding temporary shelters—as well as food and clothing—for the refugees.

The question of permanent homes and means of livelihood for these thousands is one that will take time. Many communities, however, have contributed land and advanced other plans to help solve the problem.

Industrial centers like Helsinki are expected to absorb many of the people from cities in the ceded areas. A plan already has been put forward for the development of Degoree, a section of Helsinki along the coast. The plans call for improvement of the harbor and extension of the railroad to Degoree. Efforts also are being made to arrange for low priced land plots to encourage building of residences and new industries.

Such plans as the one suggested by

JUDGE CRABITES TO TALK MONDAY

Third And Final Lecture To Be Given By International Authority

NEW ORLEANS MEN ARE SENTENCED AT HOUSTON
HOUSTON, Tex., April 13.—(P)—Two New Orleans men were under sentences today in a narcotic smuggling case, and the government was ready to proceed against others in a ramification of it.

Anthony and Joe Mussacchia were sentenced yesterday on a charge of smuggling a narcotic weed across the Mexican border at Laredo. Anthony was given three years in prison and Joe 18 months, which was suspended for five years.

United States District Attorney Douglas McGregor said another case would be called for trial at Laredo Monday.

LUCK SEEMS TO BE WITH THIS DRIVER OF TRUCK
SCOTTSBURG, Va., April 13.—(P)—Jack Harper's truck skidded and the rear wheels stuck in a ditch during Friday night's rainstorm. He couldn't see where he was, so he decided to sleep in the cab of the truck until morning.

Just before dawn there was a roar and a crash.

The front of the truck had been standing on the Southern railway tracks.

Harper just missed the Sunrise express. The express just missed Harper.

Premier Hepburn of Ontario for the migration of 100,000 Finns to Canada are regarded as completely out of the question. Commenting on this plan the newspaper Itä Sanomat said: "Leaving the fatherland at this stage of the game is treachery. Every Finn is needed here for reconstruction which, if we are allowed to do it in peace, will guarantee a sure livelihood for all Finnish citizens."

Monroe Society Looks Forward To Many Alluring Pleasures Of Summer Camps

Vacations Also Bring Anticipatory Thrill

Fudickers Invite Gay Party To Lake St. John; New Homes Being Planned By Several Families

By Eve Bradford

OUR DAYS are once more embroidered in sapphire blue and gold. No price is set on the lavish splendor of our April days so it can be enjoyed to the fullest by the poorest corner. It is easy now for the heart to be glad with summer in the offing and long, lazy days stretching out alluringly. Happiest of all are those who have summer camps on lakes and bayous where they can escape the summer doldrums and lazily while away each week-end. Happy, too, are those who have house boats with upper decks inviting one to sit under the stars in the cool evening.

For those who have neither summer lodge or house boat there is always the prospect of a summer vacation to furnish an anticipatory thrill.

Speaking of summer lodges brings to mind the house-warming the Fred Fudickers had last week-end at their place on Lake St. John. And by the way they have purchased a station wagon so that supplies can be conveniently carried from town.

It was a gay company the Fudickers gathered together for this particular occasion. One of the guests, Doll Hudson, home from Wellesley college for a visit with her parents, enjoyed the novelty of such an outing after a hectic visit in New York City as the guest of Henry and Bessie Biedenharn at the Biltmore hotel. It was just one continual round of pleasure with Henry Biedenharn, Jr., student at the university of Virginia, completing the happy foursome. Theaters, glamorous night clubs and all the smart restaurants and clubs were visited with the shops holding special attraction for Bessie, who is considered one of the best dressed women in Monroe. Doll boarded a plane for home after a week of festive gaiety. Her marriage to Henry Biedenharn, Jr., will take place late in August and is already engaging the attention of society.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wisely said, "A man builds a house and now he has a master and a task for life; he is to furnish, watch it and keep it in repair for the rest of his days."

The momentous observation doesn't seem to scare out any of our conferees! Edwin and Katherine Theus are watching the last nails being driven into their new home on Island drive. It is going to be a beautiful home facing the sleepy bayou with spacious rooms including a nursery for their two lovely children.

Just around the corner, the E. L. Marchmans and their adorable little blonde son are now established in the new home they purchased from the Ivy Jordons.

The Louis Masurs have taken up residence in their handsome new home with its beautiful iron grill work. It is one of the most spacious and one of the most beautiful homes in the city. Part of the pleasure of getting settled in the new surroundings was marred by an emergency appendectomy Louis was forced to undergo last week. All is well that ends well however and all members of the family are now looking forward to happy days in the new home.

The M. C. McDonaids have acquired acres of ground in West Monroe where they will build one of the handsomest homes in this section. The place already has a homelike atmosphere with trees and shrubbery gracing the landscape.

The home the Tom Munnhollands have just purchased from the Henry Steens isn't new in point of years but it will be new to them with improvements made to suit their individual tastes.

Flash—it's a son for Travis and Kitty Oliver at the Clinic. He'll be called Travis the third. It's daughter for Peggy and James Harris at the Clinic. They can't decide on a name.

Skittering here, there and yonder on spring motor trips are several fortunate ones who find it so enviably simple to pull up stakes and set out. Joe Biedenharn and daughter Emma Louise set out for a little giro into a beautiful section of the country with the Rio Grande valley their main objective. They paused in San Antonio long enough to attend the wedding of Mr. Biedenharn's niece and for Emma Louise to lend her all to the wedding ceremony. After a beautiful voice to the ceremony, they visited the Bellingrath gardens, the Azalea trail and the Natchez garden pilgrimage, they returned home simply saturated in springtime beauty.

There is music aplenty at the Ben Stern home where Bessie plays the piano. Ben plays a wind instrument and their talented sons play brass instruments. Music hath charm to soothe, consequently life is serene in this happy household where love of music places them all on the same plane of existence. Bessie has a beautiful alto voice that adds pleasure to their music filled evenings.

Miss Evelyn Flannigan is spending a few weeks in Vicksburg.

Readers Clique

Studies Psychology

The Readers Clique was entertained Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. G. L. Morgan.

After the business meeting, presided over by the president, Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, Mrs. Morgan gave an interesting paper consisting of excerpts from a course of lectures on "Human Nature" by Julian Pennington.

Dr. Pennington is a famous psychologist. He explains his work as bringing things from your sub-conscious mind to your conscious mind so that you can overcome them.

Dr. Pennington divides people into three types: the vital, the motive and the mental. Some people are a combination of two types and some of all three.

The vital type has a round face and round head. Is usually short, heavy and oftentimes has the much-lamented "bay window."

The vital type is the most likable and friendly of all the types, is a natural politician and is happiest when handshaking, loves peace and is a past master at getting along with people. Doesn't worry much, likes to play and is a free spender. He is a natural businessman.

Vital women have much of the same traits as the men. Good business women, good organizers and managers, natural home-makers and good cooks.

The motive type has square features, all lines are angular. He is bony and tough-fibered. Some are tall, some short with deep-set eyes and thin lips.

The motive type is not very graceful but is the most substantial and dependable type. Like plain clothes, cars, houses and furniture, lacks imagination, is practical and often blunt. Is hard to sell new ideas to, and is most conscientious.

The motive type is active and likes outdoor life, and has the strongest heart of all types. Is serious-minded and a creature of habit. Usually men of silent leadership and sound judgment.

There are few women of the motive type and these few wear mannish haircuts, shirts and men's ties and plain shoes. There is nothing about them that reminds you of "lavender and old lace."

The mental type has a triangular-shaped face, refined features, narrow feet and hands and is built for scholarship rather than heavy physical work. Likes music and reading and is artistic. Has great pride and is not a good mixer. Is retiring, sensitive and highly moral. Likes beautiful pictures on walls of home, and good books.

The mental type is not a good businessman, and is not a lover of money or power and is not very healthy.

The mental men are often research men, writers, artists, teachers, lecturers, preachers and interior decorators.

Mental women would rather entertain you in the drawing room with a discussion of Shakespeare than delight you at the table with a ham she has baked. She is gracious but retiring, and is not a very good business woman.

Children of the mental type are often old for their years, would rather read than romp. Often timid and misundstood.

Dr. Pennington speaks of a man as a house of many rooms. Some rooms are large and airy, some are small and musty. You cannot judge a man by one trait alone.

After a general discussion, the hostess served delicious refreshments to the following members: Mrs. Clay Albright, Mrs. Cecil Blanchard, Mrs. Clyde Blanchard, Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, Mrs. Wesley Ekholm, Mrs. W. H. Hemler, Mrs. X. Holt, Mrs. J. L. Ivey, Mrs. Mike John, Jr., Mrs. Raymond John, Mrs. E. L. Marchman, Mrs. Clay Olson, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. J. L. Whitfield and Mrs. Merrill Williams.

Friends in this city have just received cards from Captain and Mrs. Forrest Edwin Collins, formerly of Monroe, announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Barbara Ellen Collins, to Lieutenant Roland Wallace Boughton, Jr., United States Army, on March the twenty-seventh, Fort Amador, Canal Zone.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Washburn will attend the annual convention of the Louisiana Bankers' association in Shreveport the first of the week.

A MONROE GARDEN . . .

This picture of the formal gardens in the rear of the Clyde Brown home on North Fifth street is the first of a series to be shown in the Sunday social section of this newspaper. These gardens are now at the height of their beauty insofar as lush green foliage is concerned. Just a week ago gorgeous tulips bordered every walk and the azaleas and camellias were blooming extravagantly. The heavy rains ruined the blossoms but left the garden fresh, lovely and verdant. This, however, is just one section of the garden and conforms with the rest of the landscaping. Never have Monroe home owners taken such pride in their gardens as today. Gardening is now considered a factor in civilization. In its truest meaning it is an outlet for humankind to get away from artificiality and to feel the happiness that comes through reality. If this wasn't true gardens would be neglected and would never grow into such beautiful spots as the one shown in today's picture.

Music Guild Holds Music Forum Study

Mrs. McReynolds Host To Meeting Of Music Lovers; Mrs. Poag Named Delegate To Convention

Mrs. Reynolds McWilliams extended the hospitality of her home to members of the Music Guild, on Wednesday afternoon.

During the business period, the president, Mrs. P. A. Poag, was elected a delegate to attend the Louisiana Federated Music club convention which convenes in Shreveport, April 18, 19 and 20. Plans were also completed for members to attend the Friday session in a body.

An appropriate climax to the year's study of "Music From All Nations," was the afternoon's program on "Music of The United States."

The works of America's famous composers have found a decided place in the hearts of the people, and for the most part were prepared by conditions arising out of trying circumstances but the long struggle was rewarded by ultimate triumph. Musical results are full compensation for the earnestness of their pursuit.

Concerning "Famous Composers of The United States," a well prepared paper by Mrs. H. M. James on this subject was highly informative to club members. She said in part:

"America, being the latest comer into the circle of musical nations, because of the great number of race factors and mental view-points, has been dominated, until recently, by European influence. But the use of localized folk material, such as the negro spirituals, melodies of Indian aborigines, cow-boy songs, and those of the Appalachian mountaineers, have now begun to develop the foundation of the distinctively American school of musical art."

"Ever since William Billings, the Boston tanner, who died in 1800, wrote his hymn-tunes, there has been a steady procession towards musical accomplishment and the most striking exponents of individualism in American music during first half of the nineteenth century are Stephen Collins Foster 1826-1864, and Louis Moreau Gottschalk 1829-1869. The songs of the former are unmistakably American, and the Creole temperament of the latter gave his piano pieces and transcriptions an expressive quality which carried them along into another age."

"John Paine (1839-1906) has been called the dean of American music, and his works show lofty concept but have not survived as have the more popular compositions of Foster and Gottschalk."

"Besides Paine, other American composers who experimented with grand opera in these early days were William Fry (1813-1864) who wrote "Leonora," and George Briston (1823-1898) who composed "Rip Van Winkle."

"Representing permanent national ideals, Emmett's 'Dixie,' Roots' 'Battle Cry of Freedom,' and Henry Clay's 'Marching Through Georgia,' are patriotic songs which will live as long as the land which inspired them. John Philip Sousa, the march king, Arthur Foote, and Chadwick, are all New Englanders' who have contributed much excellent work in the lighter vein."

"Works of Ethelbert Nevin, such as 'The Rosary,' 'Mighty Like a Rose,' and 'Narcissus,' have given him a decided place in the hearts of the people."

"Probably the most outstanding composed is Edward MacDowell (1861-1890) and he represents our art music as Foster represents our folk music. His most important works include 'The Indian Suite,' 'Hamlet and Ophelia,' 'Woodland Sketches,' 'Sea Breezes,' 'Fireside Tales,' and 'New England Idylls.'"

"Of the modern school, famous names are Charles Wakefield Cadman, Gilbert, Victor Herbert, Damsch, Deems Taylor, and others. Of the colored race, noted composers are H. T. Burleigh, who wrote 'Deep River,' Marion Cook, who wrote 'Swing Along,' Dett, and Carl Dittie who wrote 'Jubilee Songs.'"

"American women composers of note are Lily Strickland, Carrie Jacobs Bond, Mrs. H. A. Beach and Fay Foster."

The continuation of the afternoon's scheduled program included the following numbers:

Vocal duet—"Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," and American folk song, by James Bland, rendered by Mrs. Paul Newman and Mrs. B. B. Martin, with Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, piano accompanist.

Piano—"To a Water Lily," by Edward MacDowell, played by Mrs. Raymond Spence.

Violin—"The Rosary," by Ethelbert Nevin, played by Mrs. Louise Averett with Mrs. Dallas Goss, piano accompanist.

At the conclusion of the program, chorus rehearsal was conducted by the director, Mrs. Dallas Goss, with the assistance of Mrs. Willys Hopkins, at the piano, as chorus accompanist.

The hostess served refreshments during the social period to the following members: Mesdames J. Norman Coon, F. C. Bennett, Louise Averett, R. Cretney, P. A. Colvin, Dallas Goss, J. L.

Ivey, H. M. James, E. Everett Lawson, B. B. Martin, Paul Newman, P. A. Poag and Raymond Spence.

Current Literature Club Entertained

Members of the Current Literature club were delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon when they met in the home of Mrs. Earl Stovall on Rochelle avenue.

Mrs. G. M. Heidenreich, president, presided over the business session, at which time were heard various reports, foremost being the report from Mrs. J. M. Menefee, delegate at the Fifth district meeting in Rayville. Other delegates, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. J. E. Peters and Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, gave brief reports.

Mrs. J. E. Peters gave an interesting paper on "The Law of Legislation." She pointed out that "When there are a great many people together it becomes necessary that there be laws or fixed rules whereby all the people may be governed alike for the good of all. William Cooper wrote this stanza in his poem about Robinson Crusoe on his lonely isle:

"I am monarch of all I survey
My right there is none to dispute
From the center all around to the sea
I am lord of the fowl and the brute."

"Instead of everything on the island belonging to him, the truth was that nothing belonged to him. He had no rights because there was none against whom he could claim them."

He had no duties and no liabilities," Mrs. Peters said:

"For the purpose of presenting the laws to the people and enforcing them, we have our courts and judges. We are social beings and cannot live without human companionships. We are dependent upon one another for food, clothing, shelter, education and everything we need and have. Therefore we must have laws to help us get along together as we travel this road of life."

Mrs. G. B. Watkins brought out several interesting facts in her article, "We Point With Pride," referring to the General Federation Golden Jubilee radio program which will be heard over N. B. C. April 24, at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Jordan Barton gave a very interesting review of the novel "Escape," by Ethel Vance. She said in part: "First and foremost this is a rattling good German novel, packed with excitement, tension and enough humor to lighten the grimness of its circumstances. Its plot is one that could be conceived only by a mind of an author that could produce good mystery stories and its characterizations reveal a good insight on Nazism. There is a deliberate indefiniteness hinting and not stating facts. It possesses a haunting quality which continues to disturb the reader even after the last page is finished."

"Escape has as its principal characters Emme Ritter, a one-time famous German actress, now a little past forty years of age. Her faithful and trusted servant, Fritz, who served her during the height of her career, Mark her only son, an artist just past twenty, Anna Hoffman, a woman tubercular who is in the same room with Emme in this German concentration camp and Hermann, the nurse. The doctor in the camp is a young German surgeon. This is a story of fast-moving events and unbearable suspense in taking place on contrasting levels in a world of action and imagination."

The following members were served a delicious salad sponse: Mmes. R. L. Conway, Jr., V. S. Garnett, G. M. Heidenreich, Mike John, Jr., Raymond John, J. C. Kramer, Jr., J. M. Menefee, Louis Peters, J. E. Peters, R. F. Seiler, J. Leon Dennis, Jordan Barton, J. E. Bryan, G. B. Watkins and John Naylor.

Beautiful Heirlooms To Be Exhibited By Grace Church Auxiliary On Tuesday

Public Is Invited To Attend Heirloom Tea

Private Collection Owned By Monroe Families To Be Shown At Tea At Home Of Mrs. Fagan Cox

Some ancestors just leave their descendants a name to bear. Others just leave a memoir or two. But some ancestors leave a wonderful heritage of things that their great-grandchildren can treasure and use, such as crystal, exquisite china, handsome silver, rare books, mahogany and rosewood furniture.

Monroe is fortunate in having a rich heritage of the past and quantities of the precious heirlooms which were so important a part of the former glory of the southland. There are many men and women who treasure the relics and furnishings of a vanished day and have kindly loaned them to members of Grace church auxiliary for their heirloom tea at the home of Mrs. Fagan Cox, Tuesday afternoon.

The public is extended a cordial welcome invitation to be the guests of the auxiliary on this occasion and view these treasures at leisure. Such interesting heirlooms as the silver service in the Joseph Hanna family for one hundred years or more—several first editions and old family silver owned by Mrs. Alfred Henneman—old Latin Bible printed in the 16th century—a baby dress hand-embroidered by French nuns in a convent in the year 1800—the original copy of "Dixie"—old silver snuff boxes. Mrs. J. L. Keenan's antique crystal will be on display; also a painting of Admiral Richard Byrd's great grandmother kindly loaned by Richard Troy of this city whose mother and Admiral Byrd's mother are first cousins.

The Bradford-Weir families of New Orleans will have several valuable heirlooms on display at this time. Tea will be served during the receiving hours, 4 to 6, by a coterie of beautifully gowned matrons, members of Grace church auxiliary.

Mrs. Emilie Kaliski, Jr., and daughter, Carol, of Houston, are guests of Mrs. Emilie Kaliski, Sr., and Mrs. Simon Shlenker.

Opera Club Hears Talk On 'Siegfried'

"Siegfried," the third opera in the Wagnerian Cycle, was given by Mrs. E. J. Hinkle when Mrs. E. C. Gibson entertained members of the Opera club in her apartment at the Alvis hotel. Mrs. J. Norman Coon presided at this time.

Mrs. Hinkle gave a resume of the two preceding operas "Das Rheingold" and "Die Walkure" bringing with clarity the story that had so far made up the first half of the cycle.

She linked in splendid sequence the story of Siegfried, son of the god Wotan and of the earth mother, Erda, whose lot it was to break the reign of the Gods and thus bring about their undisputed power into its twilight.

There is little of tragedy, much of lightness and joy of youth and love in the most beautiful of the Ring cycle, which tells of the young Siegfried, impetuous, brave, joyful and handsome, and Brunnhilde, the god-like maid who finds she is but a woman after all.

Mrs. E. C. Gibson led in a round table discussion of the operas. Following the lesson, Mrs. Norman Coon appointed committees for an open program to be held in May. Much interest centers around this program as it will mark the close of one of the most interesting years in the club's history.

The hostess served delicious refreshments to the following members: Mrs. Charles Bennett, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. C. S. Gausell, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. E. J. Hinkle, Mrs. J. C. Kramer, Jr., Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. C. W. Oeland, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. B. A. Colvin, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell, and Miss Clara Frieberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Oliver will motor over to Shreveport to attend the Louisiana convention of Louisiana Banker's association on Monday.

Mrs. J. L. Keenan Gives Farewell Dinner To Popular Couple At Virginia Hotel

Since taking up residence in this city two years ago, Mrs. J. T. Bullen has made many friends who are expressing their sincere regret over her departure with Mr. Bullen for their new home in Shreveport.

Mrs. J. L. Keenan's farewell compliment was a luncheon on the roof of the Virginia hotel where appetizers were passed among the guests during the conversational interlude preceding the serving of luncheon.

A Lennox pink epergne overflowing with Talamian roses, formed the central decor of the beautifully appointed table for the serving of a delicious four course luncheon with broiled chicken, the piece de resistance.

The guests, in addition to Mrs. Bullen, were: Mrs. Alfred Reid, Mrs. Ned Wilson, Mrs. J. G. Durrett, Mrs. William Harper, Mrs. A. C. Worsham and C. E. Woolman.

Mrs. C. E. Woolman's compliment was a luncheon at her home on North Third street.

Considerable beauty of detail was noted in the table decor and the luncheon service. Purple pansies, purple iris and pink Radiance roses overflowed from a flaring crystal bowl.

The four course luncheon, with barbecued chicken the entree, was served to: Mrs. Bullen, Mrs. Alfred Reid, Mrs. Ned Wilson, Mrs. J. G. Durrett, Mrs. J. L. Keenan and the hostess.

Cornett-Banister Rids All Termites

Termite control has been so thoroughly demonstrated by the Antimite system used by Cornett-Banister, 220 Bernhardt building, that their contracts which have been in effect for several years are being renewed.

The Antimite system of termite control is built along good, sound engineering principals.

Antimite is especially adapted to soil treatment. This is one of the most effective means of controlling termites because, as you have learned, termites live in the ground, and not in the wood.

If the soil around the foundations is thoroughly treated with a solution of Antimite, it prevents the termites which are in the ground from getting into the building. The termite's shelter tubes are built of soil. Their runways are lined with soil. If this soil is thoroughly saturated with Antimite, the termites will poison themselves by taking Antimite into their system.

Antimite "makes termites exterminate termites." Cornett-Banister uses only trustworthy and experienced operators to apply the Antimite system.

Antimite is a scientific formula developed over twenty years ago in one of the largest laboratories in the world. The Antimite "termite proofing contract and guaranty" plan offers you continued inspections and service.

G. C. Cornett and Roy H. Banister are the owners of this termite control company and they especially invite you to call them at telephone number 5594 for a free inspection.

'Primrose Path' Opens Engagement Today At Paramount

Dudley Digges, Douglas Walton, David Niven and Olivia de Havilland discuss the spectacular exploits of the amateur crackman in a scene from Samuel Goldwyn's "Raffles," which will have its first showing at the Paramount theater Wednesday and Thursday.

Now comes Ginger Rogers in one of the most remarkable roles in her career in "Primrose Path," screen attraction today, Monday and Tuesday at the Paramount theater co-starring Joel McCrea. The vivacious Ginger is cast as the tomboy daughter of a family living on the wrong side of the tracks who breaks away from it all through a meteoric romance with Joel McCrea.

Romantic minstrel days are recalled in "Swanee River," the story of Stephen C. Foster, the great American troubadour, produced in technicolor and showing today and Monday at the Capitol theater. Don Ameche is seen as Foster, Andrea Leeds as his lovely bride, Al Jolson plays E. P. Christy, the famous minstrel king of the day.

Miss Rogers, McCrea Star In New Film

Sensational Broadway Dramatic Success Makes Outstanding Hit

WEAVING a dramatic romance about a girl from the wrong side of the tracks and her Prince Charming who runs a hamburger stand, "Primrose Path" brings Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea to the Paramount theater today in their first co-starring vehicle in six years, and in one that marks a significant milestone in their careers.

Adapted from the sensational Broadway dramatic success, the story deals with the stormy romance of Ellie May Adams and Ed Wallace. Ellie May, desperately ashamed of her dissolute family and determined to keep decent herself, meets Ed while digging clams at the beach. She falls instantly in love with him. Her sincerity affects him and they are married and for a few weeks are blissfully happy.

But Ellie May realizes that sooner or later Ed will learn the truth about her family, and decides to bring them together. The meeting breaks up their marriage. Ed, furious at Ellie May's deception and believing she is tarred with the same brush, storms away.

Tyrone Power introduces his co-star Linda Darnell to Wendy Barrie in "Daytime Wife," film showing Wednesday only at the Capitol theater. What happens when wife meets secretary makes for one of the gayest comedies of the season.

How Ed's subsequent efforts at reconciliation are frustrated by Ellie May's waspish grandmother, the girl's losing battle to support the family after her mother dies, and the manner in which the young couple's troubles are straightened out, make for striking drama and suspense.

Noted for his realism in handling social problems and human interest on the screen (Stage Door and Fifth Avenue Girl), Producer-Director Gregory La Cava has another absorbing and down-to-earth story in this film. His treatment of it is said to make it one of the season's most entertaining pictures, and the finest vehicle for Miss Rogers and McCrea that they have ever had.

Besides offering exceptional opportunities to Miss Rogers and to McCrea for colorful portrayals, the picture has a distinguished supporting cast.

Majorie Rambeau and Miles Mander as Ellie May's easy-going mother and broken-down father respectively; Joan Carroll as her sassy little sister; and Queenie Vassar, famous stage actress making her screen debut, as the malicious grandmother, comprise the Adams family. Henry Travers has the role of McCrea's sympathetic grandfather and Vivienne Osborne and Carmen Morales play other important parts.

In addition to producing and directing "Primrose Path" for RKO Radio, La Cava worked with Allan Scott in writing the screen play, which is based on the play by Robert L. Bruckner and Walter Hart as produced by George Abbott.

SHELL GAME

PIKEVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—G. C. Ratliff is curious enough to find out just how long black walnuts remain edible if left in the shell. In 1923, he visited a friend who gave him walnuts gathered three years earlier. So he decided to start his experiment. He obtained a large number of walnuts and began cracking one each year. He has yet to find a bad one after 17 years. He still has enough walnuts to last until 1952.

VARIABLE LOCATION

Geographically, the term "Antipodes" is used to designate the inhabitants of any two opposite points on the globe, so they may be any place on earth. A group of islands near New Zealand are known as the "Antipodes."

Alexander Korda's sensational new picture, "The Lion Has Wings," which plays at the Capitol theater on Tuesday only, shows for the first time on the screen the silver balloon barrage, an elaborate system of huge balloons with invisible entanglements of wire which force enemy planes high into the sky far beyond bombing ranges. Merle Oberon, and Ralph Richardson are the featured stars.

Butler meets baby—Arthur Treacher (left), No. 1 screen butler has his first meeting with the species infantus in "Brother Rat and a Baby." Peter B. Good is the baby, Eddie Albert and Jane Bryan the proud parents and Wayne Morris (center) is just kibitzing. Priscilla Lane, Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan are also starred.

Beautiful Songs Of Stephen Foster Featured In 'Swanee River'

THE very heart of America is embodied in the familiar melodies of Stephen Collins Foster, inspirationally expressed in such songs as "The Old Folks at Home" (Swanee River), "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Oh! Susanna," "De Campdown Races," "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" and "Ring, Ring de Banjo," to mention but a few.

Stephen Foster was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., on the fourth of July, 1826. Thirty-eight years later, alone and all but forgotten, he died in a shabby Bowers lodging house to which he had drifted. Yet today the name of Stephen Foster, the great American troubadour, is written imperishably in the nation's culture.

Dozens of memorials dot the land from Florida to Maine to keep his name alive. Shrines have been dedicated to him, schools bear his name and volumes have been written about him. Now the screen has added another monument to his memory.

At 20th Century-Fox, "Swanee River" has recently been filmed in Technicolor, a dramatization of Foster's life from the time he reached manhood and knew a great love to his tragic end.

FINANCES WORRY MISSISSIPPIANS

Balancing Of Budget Still Big Job After 15 Weeks Of Legislature

JACKSON, Miss., April 13.—(AP)—The legislature enters its sixteenth week Monday with the balancing of Mississippi's financial sheet still the big job before it.

Members made progress on individual items last week for the first time in two months, and a few more days of solid work might bring the end of the trail into view.

Unfortunately, the legislature's good days have rarely followed one another. One progressive session is often succeeded by days or even weeks of unproductive controversy.

Senator Dave Crawley asked members recently to "quit fighting like tom-cats under a chittlin' house and get down to work."

Members came back to the chamber last week in a mood to accept the advice. Chairman John Kyle of the senate finance committee reported both Paul Johnson and anti-Paul Johnson leaders of both houses had agreed on a $42,114,126.30 budget.

The administration tried for weeks to finance one for $44,000,000.

The $42,114,126.30 compromise figure represented an estimate of what the present tax structure will produce in the next biennium, plus several millions in estimated new revenue from new measures.

A sidelight story is told of Crawley—and not by him denied—that he insisted the 30 cents be carried on the end of a purely estimated figure.

While the house passed 40 appropriations measures during the week, the senate went to work on the compromise tax bills.

In one day the upper chamber turned out five measures which were counted on for $1,400,000 in new revenue. Only one dissenting vote was registered against the series.

Not all of these measures provided for increases in present rates, however, for the ad valorem tax was reduced at six mills. The administration had lost a long, bitter fight for eight.

Other bills of the group raised the franchise tax on capital stock of corporations from $1 per $100 to $2; eliminated income tax exemptions allowed corporations; increased the individual income tax rate approximately one per cent in higher brackets and fixed the severance tax at two per cent for oil and timber.

The following day members voted a measure to permit the state to sell approximately $600,000 in four per cent Humphreys county bonds, and to revise certain manufacturers' taxes to raise about $150,000.

The state bought the county's bonds in 1928 to finance repair of flood damage at a time when flooded counties could get no credit in the bond market.

Most of these bills have yet to be considered by the house, which faces a rocky week.

In addition to these revenue measures, other bills on the house calendar are appropriations bills for the common school fund and the old age pension fund which are entirely unsatisfactory to these tightly organized groups.

Old age pension supporters got $2,000,000 last biennium, asked $4,000,000 this biennium, finally were in a mood to accept $3,000,000 if this was the way it had to be.

Governor Controls Many Departments In Louisiana

Legislature Of 1936 Passed Laws Giving Dictatorial Powers

By Norman Walker
BATON ROUGE, La., April 13.—(AP)—Among broad powers presently wielded by Louisiana's governor is an absolute say-so over certain state departments.

Obviously it's a matter requiring consideration from a dictatorship-disintegrating legislature.

Under present laws the state's chief executive holds a vise-grip over the revenue, labor, police and graft-checking governmental divisions and fairly well may dictate the relief program policies.

The machinery of the thing is simple. The governor controls employment and/or salary of those in charge of all these public services.

Naturally if things ever come to a showdown a governor may say: "You'll do as I want, or else—"

Tightest straight-jacket is over the collector of revenue, whose office annually handles over $50,000,000 tax collections, and the supervisor of public funds, whose duties require reporting to the governor any public fiscal discrepancies.

Both officers serve at the executive will at salaries fixed by him. Thus, if either should incur gubernatorial displeasure, over tax collections or over investigations of public accounts, his salary might take a dip or he might even get his walking papers.

It was without any explanation that former Governor Richard W. Leche ousted Alice Lee Grosjean, more recently a campaign manager for Governor Earl K. Long, first as collector of revenue and then as supervisor of public funds.

State police must do Boy Scout duty for the governor now, should there be orders to that effect, because the police department head also holds his job at gubernatorial whim. Through lack of any provision in the law for his salary, the state police head may set his own figure. But, since he's controlled by the governor, the latter really says how much.

The state labor commissioner is about in the same fix. On the other hand the welfare commissioner, in charge of the state's relief program, is employed by, and at a salary set by a welfare commission appointed by the governor.

This situation may be blamed to the 1936 legislature which fixed these office-holding handicaps in arranging or rearranging all five departments. It's a different story for some of ficers under the executive department whose jobs were provided for in prior years.

Take the important highway commission, conservation department and tax commission. While men supervising these divisions are appointed by the chief executive, their terms in office are protected through receiving senate confirmation and, theoretically at least, they can act independently, do as they wish and buck a governor any time they disagree with him.

Also attributed to the 1936 legislature is the municipal dictatorship given Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans.

Besides having his term extended from four to six years, Maestri also was given absolute control over city patronage through broadened appointment power and control over a city civil service commission which passes on qualifications of city workers.

The legislature's most potent gift to the New Orleans mayor, however, was a new provision in the municipal charter giving Maestri the final word in the city's commission council, composed of himself and four councilmen. All four must vote against the mayor to override his wishes.

Two important posts on the legislative staff are set. J. Martin Ham-ley, veteran clerk of the house of representatives, will move over to the senate as secretary succeeding B. W. Cason, also presently the state labor commissioner.

Lee Laycock, a member of the legislative crew in the house for the past 20 years, is slated to succeed Hamley as house clerk. Incidentally, Laycock used to work for Cason in the labor department. He quit and operated a sound truck for Governor-Designate Sam Jones during the campaign.

Hamley, well-known in state political circles, has been seriously ill at his home at Lake Providence but last reports said he was well on the way to recovery and would be ready for next month's session.

GRAIN OF KINDNESS

KANSAS CITY.—(AP)—There's a $10,000 trust fund in Kansas that assures "needy horses" of a free Christmas dinner of oats.

The fund was set up by the late Mrs. Emma W. Robinson of Olathe. Each horse is allowed one bushel. In 1937, 250 bushels of oats were purchased but only 150 needy horses could be found. Since then the humane society has been able to dispose of about 200 bushels each Christmas.

FERGUSONS BACK ON TEXAS SCENE

'Ma' Announces She Will Seek Gubernatorial Nomination

AUSTIN, April 13.—(AP)—The amazing political team of Miriam A. and James E. Ferguson announced today they were taking the field once more, and soon over Texas' hills and plains will be ringing the battle cry of their followers, "Me for Ma."

Asserting the condition of the state demanded action to restore sanity and prosperity, Mrs. Ferguson, through her famous husband, announced her candidacy for governor, and declared an active campaign to wrest the office from Governor W. Lee O'Daniel would be started within two weeks.

Her platform of seven planks favored:

A "bird term" for President Roosevelt and continuing in Texas the things he stands for.

Paying old age pensions and other social security claims to all eligible under the constitution and financing the program by a tax of one-half of one per cent on gross receipts of merchants estimated to yield $50,000,000 a year.

Reducing appropriations 25 per cent or $25,000,000.

Removing discriminations against persons 45 years of age and older.

Meeting reasonable demands of organized labor.

State and federal cooperation in aiding tenant farmers to purchase homes.

Liberal appropriations for education. It will be the fifth time that Mrs. Ferguson, now 64 years old and a grandmother, has campaigned for governor. Twice she was elected and twice she was defeated. Called "Ma" because of her initials, she was the first woman in the United States to be elected governor of a state, and she is the only woman ever to be governor of Texas.

VANGER TOOK AIM AT TARZAN, AND FIRED! AT THE SAME INSTANT A LIGHTNING CHAIN OF ACTION WAS LET LOOSE.

BRAVE MATEA STRUCK UP THE VILLAIN'S ARM. TARZAN LEAPED ON VANGER. THE BABOONS SAILED DOWN INTO THE FRAY.

GROOT CARLUS DASHED UP, ROARING: "VANGER IS MINE!" SO TARZAN PROVE THE BABOONS AWAY AND JERKED THE VILLAIN TO HIS FEET.

CARLUS SPOKE SOLEMNLY: "YOU WILL HAVE A CHANCE TO FIGHT LIKE A MAN!"

"BUT YOU ARE BIGGER," VANGER WHINED. CARLUS NODDED, THEN STRODE TO ONE OF THE HORSES AND CUT A REIN.

TO TARZAN HE HANDED THE LEATHER THONG, AND SAID: "YOU WILL BIND MY RIGHT ARM TO MY SIDE."

"AYE, SO HE MAY," THE GIANT AGREED. "BUT NO ONE CAN SAY THAT GROOT CARLUS I WAS NOT A JUST MAN, EVEN TO HIS ENEMIES!"

TARZAN DID AS HE WAS BIDDEN, WITHOUT PROTEST. HE KNEW HIS FRIEND'S FANATIC, HEROIC DEVOTION TO FAIR PLAY.
